Intentionality in Husserl and Heidegger B.C. Hopkins, 2013-04-17

1. Remarks on the Current Status of the Problematic: The literature treating the relationship between the phenomenologies of Husserl and Heidegger has not been kind to Husserl. Heidegger's devastating phenomenologically ontological critique of traditional epistemology and ontology, advanced under the rubric of fundamental ontology in Being and Time, has almost been universally received despite the paucity of its references to Husserl as sounding the death knell for Husserl's original formulation of phenomenology. The recent publication of Heidegger's lectures from the period surrounding his composition of Being and Time—lectures that contain detailed references and critical analyses of Husserl's phenomenology and which, in the words of one respected commentator, Rudolf Bernet, offer at long last insight into the principal sources of fundamental ontology—will, if the conclusions reached by the same commentator are any indication, serve only to reinforce the perception of Heidegger's phenomenological superiority over Husserl. This is not to suggest that the tendency toward Heidegger partisanship in the literature treating the relationship of his phenomenology to Husserl's has its basis in extra-philosophical or extra-phenomenological concerns and considerations. Rather, it is to draw attention to the undeniable fact that Heidegger's reformulation of Husserl's phenomenology has cast a spell over all subsequent discussions of the basic problems and issues involved in what has become known as their controversy.
