The administrative process

A process can be defined as a set of successive steps, phases or actions of a natural or artificial phenomenon. In the context of the study and practice of management, there are different approaches that have contributed to this discipline with a large number of theories, ideas or concepts from different points of view.

Administration has been studied through experience, decision-making, human relations, it has been studied as a social system, also with a quantitative approach and through the tasks performed by the professionals in the field.

Today, the concept of the administrative process is a fundamental part of management theory. Each one of the functions must be understood and carried out correctly by the management professional, and they have factors, principles, or aspects that, if not taken into account, the administrative process could not fulfill its objectives.

Having said that, the process begins with its first phase, which is planning. Organizations seek to achieve a goal in the future, and there are questions such as: What actions should be taken? How to reach that goal? When? Where? Why?

It highlights that the administrative process is related to each activity of the company and that the planning, organization, direction, and control are all part of the functions carried out there, such as marketing, finance, production, and personnel management and I can think it's evident that none of its principles or factors can't be ignored if the organization wants to be successful

Essays In The Art of Writing Robert Louis Stevenson, 2013-08-03 There is nothing more disenchanting to man than to be shown the springs and mechanism of any art All our arts and occupations lie wholly on the surface it is on the surface that we perceive their beauty fitness and significance and to pry below is to be appalled by their emptiness and shocked by the coarseness of the strings and pulleys In a similar way psychology itself when pushed to any nicety discovers an abhorrent baldness but rather from the fault of our analysis than from any poverty native to the mind And perhaps in aesthetics the reason is the same those disclosures which seem fatal to the dignity of art seem so perhaps only in the proportion of our ignorance and those conscious and unconscious artifices which it seems unworthy of the serious artist to employ were yet if we had the power to trace them to their springs indications of a delicacy of the sense finer than we conceive and hints of ancient harmonies in nature This ignorance at least is largely irremediable We shall never learn the affinities of beauty for they lie too deep in nature and too far back in the mysterious history of man

Essays in the Art of Writing Robert Louis Stevenson, 2021-03-11 The profession of letters has been lately debated in the public prints and it has been debated to put the matter mildly from a point of view that was calculated to surprise high minded men and bring a general contempt on books and reading Some time ago in particular a lively pleasant popular writer devoted an essay lively and pleasant like himself to a very encouraging view of the profession We may be glad that his experience is so cheering and we may hope that all others who deserve it shall be as handsomely rewarded but I do not think we need be at all glad to have this question so important to the public and ourselves debated solely on the ground of money The salary in any business under heaven is not the only nor indeed the first question That you should continue to exist is a matter for your own consideration but that your business should be first honest and second useful are points in which honour and morality are concerned If the writer to whom I refer succeeds in persuading a number of young persons to adopt this way of life with an eye set singly on the livelihood we must expect them in their works to follow profit only and we must expect in consequence if he will pardon me the epithets a slovenly base untrue and empty literature Of that writer himself I am not speaking he is diligent clean and pleasing we all owe him periods of entertainment and he has achieved an amiable popularity which he has adequately deserved But the truth is he does not or did not when he first embraced it regard his profession from this purely mercenary side He went into it I shall venture to say if not with any noble design at least in the ardour of a first love and he enjoyed its practice long before he paused to calculate the wage The other day an author was complimented on a piece of work good in itself and exceptionally good for him and replied in terms unworthy of a commercial traveller that as the book was not briskly selling he did not give a copper farthing for its merit It must not be supposed that the person to whom this answer was addressed received it as a profession of faith he knew on the other hand that it was only a whiff of irritation just as we know when a respectable writer talks of literature as a way of life like shoemaking but not so useful that he is only debating one aspect of a question and is still clearly conscious of a dozen others more important in themselves and more central to the matter in hand

those disclosures which seem fatal to the dignity of art seem so perhaps only in the proportion of our ignorance and those conscious and unconscious artifices which it seems unworthy of the serious artist to employ were yet if we had the power to trace them to their springs indications of a delicacy of the sense finer than we conceive and hints of ancient harmonies in nature This ignorance at least is largely irremediable We shall never learn the affinities of beauty for they lie too deep in nature and too far back in the mysterious history of man
