Essays of an Information Scientist Eugene Garfield, 1988      Essays of an Information Scientist: 1962-1973 Eugene Garfield, 1977      Essays of an Information Scientist: 1984, The awards of science and other essays Eugene Garfield, 1977      Historical Studies in Information Science Trudi Bellardo Hahn, Michael Keeble Buckland, 1998

The 25 contributions to this volume largely reprinted from recent special issues of three information science journals devoted to historical topics address an array of topics including Paul Otlet and his successors techniques tools and systems organizations and individuals theoretical issues and literature Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR      The Web of Knowledge Eugene Garfield, 2000 This new ASIST monograph is the first to comprehensively address the history theory and practical applications of citation analysis a field which has grown from Garfield's seed of an idea and to examine its impact on scholarly research forty years after its inception In bringing together the analyses insights and reflections of more than thirty five leading lights editors Cronin and Atkins have produced both a comprehensive survey of citation indexing and its applications and a beautifully realized tribute to Eugene Garfield and his vision in honor of his seventy fifth birthday

Becoming Metric-Wise Ronald Rousseau, Leo Egghe, Raf Guns, 2018-01-02 Becoming Metric Wise A Bibliometric Guide for Researchers aims to inform researchers about metrics so that they become aware of the evaluative techniques being applied to their scientific output Understanding these concepts will help them during their funding initiatives and in hiring and tenure The book not only describes what indicators do or are designed to do which is not always the same thing but also gives precise mathematical formulae so that indicators can be properly understood and evaluated Metrics have become a critical issue in science with widespread international discussion taking place on the subject across scientific journals and organizations As researchers should know the publication citation context the mathematical formulae of indicators being used by evaluating committees and their consequences and how such indicators might be misused this book provides an ideal tome on the topic Provides researchers with a detailed understanding of bibliometric indicators and their applications Empowers researchers looking to understand the indicators relevant to their work and careers Presents an informed and rounded picture of bibliometrics including the strengths and shortcomings of particular indicators Supplies the mathematics behind bibliometric indicators so they can be properly understood Written by authors with longstanding expertise who are considered global leaders in the field of bibliometrics

The Cognitive Paradigm Marc de Mey, 1992-09 In this study of the cognitive paradigm De Mey applies the study of computer models of human perception to the philosophy and sociology of science A most stimulating and intellectually delightful book John Goldsmith De Mey has brought together an unusually wide range of material and suggested some interesting lines of thought about what should be an important application of cognitive science The understanding of science itself Cognition and Brain Theory It ought to be on the shelf of every teacher and researcher in the field and on the reading list of any student or practitioner seriously interested in how those they serve are likely to set about knowing ISIS

Prematurity in Scientific Discovery Ernest B. Hook, 2002-10-02 For centuries observers have noted the many obstacles to intellectual change in science In a much discussed paper published in Scientific American in 1972 molecular biologist Gunther Stent proposed an explicit criterion for one kind of obstacle to scientific discovery He denoted a claim or hypothesis as premature if its implications cannot be connected to canonical knowledge by a simple series of logical steps Further Stent suggested that it was appropriate for the scientific community to ignore such hypotheses so that it would not be overwhelmed by vast numbers of false leads In this volume eminent scientists physicians historians social scientists and philosophers respond to Stent's thesis

Essays of an Information Scientist: Science, literacy, policy, evaluation, and other essays Eugene Garfield, 1990

Manual of Online Search Strategies C.J. Armstrong, J.A. Large, 2018-12-20 Published in 1992 like the first this second edition is not intended as introductory textbook command driven Boolean searching It is targeted at online searchers who already have some knowledge of command languages and may be proficient searchers on databases in one or two subject areas but when required to venture into new and less familiar territory still need guidance It is also offered to end users who possess the subject expertise but lack of information retrieval know how The Manual is offered as a guide to database selection and a navigational aid through the twists and turns of the retrieval maze at least some of the dead ends and backtracking may thereby be avoided This volume written by experts in their various fields deals with the subject coverage and record structures of specific databases offers comparisons between databases context indexing procedures updating policies etc discusses the choice between online and CD ROM sources and between hosts if online is selected and illustrates strategies with numerous search extracts

Reporting of Social Science in the National Media Carol Weiss, Eleanor

Singer, 1988-08-04 Policy makers as well as the general public are often unaware of social science research until a story about it appears in the national media Even in official Washington a staffer's report on social research may go unnoticed while a report in the Washington Post receives immediate attention This study takes a systematic and revealing look at social science reporting How do journalists hear about social science and why do they select certain stories to cover and not others How do journalistic standards for selection compare with social scientists' own judgments of merit How do reporters attempt to ensure accuracy and how freely do they introduce their own interpretations of social science findings How satisfied are social scientists with the selection and accuracy of social science news In Part I Carol H Weiss addresses these questions on the basis of personal interviews with social scientists and the journalists who wrote about their work Part II by Eleanor Singer is based on an analysis of media content itself and compares social science reporting over time between 1970 and 1982 and across media newspapers newsmagazines television These two complementary perspectives combine to produce a thorough realistic assessment of the way social science moves out of the academy and into the world of news

On the Shoulders of Giants Robert K. Merton, 1993-05-15 With playfulness and a large dose of wit Robert Merton traces the origin of Newton's aphorism If I have seen farther it is by standing on the shoulders of giants Using as a model the discursive and digressive style of Sterne's Tristram Shandy Merton presents a whimsical yet scholarly work which deals with the questions of creativity tradition plagiarism the transmission of knowledge and the concept of progress This book is the delightful apotheosis of donmanship Merton parodies scholarliness while being faultlessly scholarly he scourges pedantry while brandishing his own abstruse learning on every page The most recondite and obscure scholarly squabbles are transmuted into the material of comedy as the ostensible subject is shouldered to one side by yet another hobby horse from Merton's densely populated stable He has created a jeu d'esprit which is profoundly suggestive both in detail and as a whole Sean French Times Literary Supplement Applied Evaluative Informetrics Henk F. Moed, 2017-09-08 This book presents an introduction to the field of applied evaluative informetrics dealing with the use of bibliometric or informetric indicators in research assessment It sketches the field's history recent achievements and its potential and limits The book dedicates special attention to the application context of quantitative research assessment It describes research assessment as an evaluation science and distinguishes various assessment models in which the domain of informetrics and the policy sphere are disentangled analytically It illustrates how external non-informetric factors influence indicator development and how the policy context impacts the setup of an assessment process It also clarifies common misunderstandings in the interpretation of some often used statistics Addressing the way forward the book expresses the author's critical views on a series of fundamental problems in the current use of research performance indicators in research assessment Highlighting the potential of informetric techniques a series of new features is proposed that could be implemented in future assessment processes It sketches a perspective on altmetrics and proposes new lines in longer term strategic indicator research It is written for interested scholars from all domains of science and scholarship and especially for all those subjected to research assessment research students at advanced master and PhD level research managers funders and science policy officials and to practitioners and students in the field      The Internet Revolution in the Sciences and Humanities Alan G.

Gross, Joseph E. Harmon, 2016 The Internet Revolution in the Sciences and Humanities takes a new look at C P Snow's distinction between the two cultures a distinction that provides the driving force for a book that contends that the Internet revolution has sown the seeds for transformative changes in both the sciences and the humanities It is because of this common situation that the humanities can learn from the sciences as well as the sciences from the humanities in matters central to both generating evaluating and communicating knowledge on the Internet In a succession of chapters the authors deal with the state of the art in web based journal articles and books web sites peer review and post publication review In the final chapter they address the obstacles the academy and scientific organizations face in taking full advantage of the Internet outmoded tenure and promotion procedures the cost of open access and restrictive patent and copyright law They also argue that overcoming these obstacles does not require revolutionary institutional change In their view change must be incremental making use of the powers and prerogatives scientific and academic organizations already have      National Research Funding Levels United States. Congress. House. Committee on Science and Technology. Task Force on Science Policy, 1986      Handbook Bibliometrics Rafael Ball, 2020-12-07 Bibliometrics and altmetrics are increasingly becoming the focus of interest in the context of research evaluation The Handbook Bibliometrics provides a comprehensive introduction to quantifying scientific output in addition to a historical derivation individual indicators institutions application perspectives and data bases Furthermore application scenarios training and qualification on bibliometrics and their implications are considered
