Arts - Therapies - Communication European Arts Therapy Line Kossolapow, Sarah Scoble, 2005 Stipulation of a present actual position of Art Therapy however inevitably leads to further thoughts about ongoing development Everything required for the theoretical practical founding of a European Art Therapy as discipline still has to be done including construction of a communicative bridge to partners in other continents or countries This development work has two strands of development One follows a more theoretical direction with European Art Therapy as a research and teaching subject as an objective in view The other is directed more towards practical fieldwork which in turn can lead to the establishment of funds of experience as well as quantitative and qualitative investigations and thus to theoretical methodical statements In the contributions on hand both connections pervade Naturally the individual articles in this collection do not fully expound the volume of art therapeutic work throughout Europe but they are a source of information and inspiration for the user from theory and or practice who can then find his particular niche with his own specific interests within the cross section and subsequently continue the discourse spatially and objectively Art Therapy and Social Action Frances F. Kaplan, Frances Kaplan, 2007 Art Therapy and Social Action is an exciting exploration of how professionals can incorporate the techniques and approaches of art therapy to address social problems Leading art therapists and other professionals show how creative methods can be used effectively to resolve conflicts manage aggression heal trauma and build communities

Classic Morita Therapy Peg LeVine, 2017-07-28 Shoma Masatake Morita M D 1874 1938 was a Japanese psychiatrist professor who developed a unique four stage therapy process He challenged psychoanalysts who sanctioned an unconscious or unconsciousness collective or otherwise that resides inside the mind Significantly he advanced a phenomenal connection between existentialism Zen Nature and the therapeutic role of serendipity Morita is a forerunner of eco psychology and he equalised the strength between human to human attachment and human to Nature bonds This book chronicles Morita s theory of peripheral consciousness his paradoxical method his design of a natural therapeutic setting and his progressive four stage therapy It explores how this therapy can be beneficial for clients outside of Japan using for the first time non Japanese case studies The author s personal material about training in Japan and subsequent practice of Morita s ecological and phenomenological therapy in Australia and the United States enhance this book LeVine s coining of cruelty based trauma generates a rich discussion on the need for therapy inclusive of ecological settings As a medical anthropologist clinical psychologist and genocide scholar LeVine shows how the four progressive stages are essential to the classic method and the key importance of the first rest stage in outcomes for clients who have been embossed by trauma Since cognitive science took hold in the 1970s complex consciousness theories have lost footing in psychology and medical science This book reinstates consciousness as the dynamic core of Morita therapy The case material illustrates the use of Morita therapy for clients struggling with the aftermath of trauma and how to live creatively and responsively inside the uncertainty of existence The never before published archival biographic notes and photos of psychoanalyst Karen Horney Fritz Perls Eric Fromm and other renowned scholars who took an interest in Morita in the 1950s and 60s provide a dense historical backdrop
