Psychological Components of Sustainable Peace Peter T. Coleman, Morton Deutsch, 2012-06-15 Scholarship on the psychology of peace has been accumulating for decades The approach employed has been predominantly centered on addressing and preventing conflict and violence and less on the conditions associated with promoting peace

Concerns around nuclear annihilation enemy images discrimination denial of basic human needs terrorism and torture have been the focal points of most research The Psychological Components of a Sustainable Peace moves beyond a prevention orientation to the study of the conditions for increasing the probabilities for sustainable cooperative peace Such a view combines preventative scholarship with a promotive orientation to the study of peaceful situations and societies The contributors to this volume examine the components of various psychological theories that contribute to the promotion of a harmonious sustainable peace Underlying this orientation is the belief that promoting the ideas and actions which can lead to a sustainable harmonious peace will not only contribute to the prevention of war but will also lead to more positive constructive relations among people and nations and to a more sustainable planet The Psychological Components of a Sustainable Peace is valuable and stimulating reading for researchers in peace psychology political psychology and conflict resolution as well as others who are interested in developing a sustainable harmonious world Handbook of Global

Dynamic Foundations of Destructive Social Relations Robin R. Vallacher,Peter T. Coleman,Andrzej Nowak,Lan Bui-Wrzosinska,Larry Liebovitch,Katharina Kugler,Andrea Bartoli,2014-07-08 Conflict is inherent in virtually every aspect of human relations from sport to parliamentary democracy from fashion in the arts to paradigmatic challenges in the sciences and from economic activity to intimate relationships Yet it can become among the most serious social problems humans face when it loses its constructive features and becomes protracted over time with no obvious means of resolution This book addresses the subject of intractable social conflict from a new vantage point Here these types of conflict represent self organizing phenomena emerging quite naturally from the ongoing dynamics in human interaction at any scale from the interpersonal to the international Using the universal language and computational framework of nonlinear dynamical systems theory in combination with recent insights from social psychology intractable conflict is understood as a system locked in special attractor states that constrain the thoughts and actions of the parties to the conflict The emergence and maintenance of attractors for conflict can be described by means of formal models that incorporate the results of computer simulations experiments field research and archival analyses Multi disciplinary research reflecting these approaches provides encouraging support for the dynamical systems perspective Importantly this text presents new views on conflict resolution In contrast to traditional approaches that tend to focus on basic short lived cause effect relations the dynamical perspective emphasizes the temporal patterns and potential for emergence in destructive relations Attractor deconstruction entails restoring complexity to a conflict scenario by isolating elements or changing the feedback loops among them The creation of a latent attractor trades on the tendency toward multi stability in dynamical systems and entails the consolidation of incongruent positive elements into a coherent structure In the bifurcation scenario factors are identified that can change the number and types of attractors in a conflict scenario The implementation of these strategies may hold the key to unlocking intractable conflict creating the potential for constructive social relations
