When her artist mother dies Charlotte's life is turned upside down. Before she even has time to deal with her grief her supposedly dead father appears and they are forced to share her mother's New York apartment to satisfy the terms of her will. It seems even in death her mother is determined to have the last word. Reluctantly living in Soho with a father she has never met before Charlotte's begins to change in unexpected ways. Haunted by grief Charlotte still hears her mother's voice urging her to pull herself together sit up straight and embrace life. And where before Charlotte was content with her job and making herbal remedies and playing computer games in her spare time Now she's beginning to take risks even pursuing her hidden desire to take acting class. Will Charlotte survive her mother's legacy let alone a year with this stranger who wants her to call him Dad

Feminist Dialogics Dale M. Bauer, 1988-07-08 Feminist Dialogics examines the structure of four novels Hawthorne's The Blithedale Romance James's The Golden Bowl Wharton's The House of Mirth and Chopin's The Awakening through the lens of Mikhail Bakhtin's critical framework The author draws on Bakhtin's notion of heteroglossia to show how the interaction of many voices forms the social community of the novel and how the functioning of these voices makes clear statements about the position and fate of women in these specific societies The novels present dialogic situations in which the women misinterpret their social texts and therefore fail to understand their own social power The four works considered in this study represent the struggle for women's construction of self within a dialogic structure of many competing voices Bauer introduces and enters into dialogue with other theorists who are concerned with the social implications of reading and interpretation including Rene Girard Wolfgang Iser Sandra Gilbert and Susan Gubar as well as other American feminists The recurring theme in the novels of this study is the exclusion and rivalry of discourse the competition among characters for authoritative and interpretive power Each voice in the novel is a thematization of an ideological perspective and as such competes for domination The conspiracy of voices to exclude the female reflects the social reality as well This work is an important contribution to literary criticism and feminist theory
