The Image of Georgian Bath 1700-2000 Peter Borsay, 2000-07-06 This interdisciplinary study explores the evolution structure and uses of the image of Georgian Bath from its genesis in the eighteenth century to its renaissance in the twentieth century In recent decades there has been both a popular resurgence of interest in heritage and tradition and a growing academic awareness of the power of imagery in shaping the lives of individuals and societies There is perhaps no city in Britain so saturated in history and layered with historic imagery as Bath It therefore provides an ideal case study to investigate the dynamic fusion and impact of the forces of past and representation The dominant perception of Bath today is that of a classical and particularly Georgian city In this stimulating and scholarly study Peter Borsay examines the construction and development of this image Its principal components biography and architecture are explored together with the media through which it was constructed and transmitted as well as its commercial social political and psychological uses Dr Borsay concludes by relating the findings for Bath to current debates on towns heritage and the nature of history

Archaeology in Bath Peter Davenport, Cynthia Poole, David Jordan, 2007 Prior to the building of the new Bath Spa excavations were carried out to record the archaeological remains threatened by its construction An important part of the dig was a programme of geoarchaeological research to study the microstructure of the soils excavated with a view to understanding the activities that led to their formation Roman Bath Peter Davenport, 2021-07-16 For almost three hundred years excavations have been carried out in Roman Bath At first these were rare and sporadic and archaeological finds were made by chance Even fewer were reported But from the 1860s deliberate investigations were made and increasingly professional methods employed The Roman Baths were laid open to view but little was published From the 1950s interest accelerated professionals and amateurs collaborated and there was never a decade in which some new discovery was not made The first popular but authoritative presentation of this work was made in 1971 and updated several times However from the 1990s to the present there has been some sort of archaeological investigation almost every year This has thrown much new and unexpected light on the town of Aquae Sulis and its citizens In this book Peter Davenport having been involved in most of the archaeological work in Bath since 1980 attempts to tell the story of Roman Bath the latest interim report on the Three Hundred Year Dig Eckweek, Peasedown St John, Somerset Andrew Young, 2020-05-10 This volume presents the results of archaeological survey and excavation at Eckweek Somerset which yielded one of the most important medieval rural settlement sequences yet excavated from south west England At the centre of the narrative is a succession of well preserved buildings spanning the late 10th to the 14th centuries A D forming the nucleus of a Domesday manor and its Late Saxon precursor Detailed analysis of the structural sequence offers a new regional perspective on pre Conquest earthfast timber architecture and its subsequent 12th century replacement by masonry traditions Culminating in a richly preserved 14th century farmhouse including a very complete assemblage of structural and domestic objects the structural archaeology provides an unusually refined picture of the internal organisation of later medieval domestic space within a rural farming setting Detailed analytical attention is given to the abundant artefactual and environmental datasets recovered from the excavations including prolific assemblages of medieval pottery and palaeoenvironmental data with a nuanced appraisal of their interpretative implications Anyone with an interest in the dynamics and regional complexity of medieval rural communities will find this a stimulating and enlightening read
