Riedinger, 1995 This book evaluates the capacity of new democratic regimes to promote redistributive agrarian reform an issue of contemporary concern in countries throughout the world Agrarian reform is particularly complex and difficult for new democracies because it curtails the power and privileges of influential elements of society The author analyzes the problems attendant on political liberalization and social and economic reform by examining in detail the formulation and implementation of agrarian reform in the Philippines under the governments of Corazon Aquino and her successor Fidel Ramos The book explores how the interaction between state and society shapes reform policy decisions paying close attention to the role of cultural variables and social organizations It shows that what is needed for successful agrarian reform is a combination of sustained forceful leadership from a disciplined reform oriented political party and grassroots agitation by peasant organizations

Making Democracy James Ockey, 2004-08-31 Democracy in Thailand is the result of a complex interplay of traditional and foreign attitudes Although democratic institutions have been imported participation in politics is deeply rooted in Thai village society A contrasting strand of authoritarianism is present not only in the traditional culture of the royal court but also in the centralized bureaucracies and powerful armed services borrowed from the West Both attitudes have helped to shape Thai democracy's specific character This topical volume explores the importance of culture and the roles played by leadership class and gender in the making of Thai democracy James Ockey describes changing patterns of leadership at all levels of society from the cabinet to the urban middle class to the countryside and suggests that such changes are appropriate to democratic government despite the continuing manipulation of authoritarian patterns He examines the institutions of democratic government especially the political parties that link voters to the parliament Political factions and the provincial notables that lead them are given careful attention The failure to fully integrate the lower classes into the democratic system Ockey argues has been the underlying cause of many of the flaws of Thai democracy Female political leadership another imported notion is better represented in urban rather than rural areas Yet gender relations in villages were more equitable than at court Ockey suggests and these attitudes have persisted to this day Successful women politicians from a variety of backgrounds have begun to overcome stereotypes associated with female leadership although barriers remain With its wide ranging analysis of Thai politics over the last three decades Making Democracy is an important resource for both students and specialists

State, Market and Peasant in Colonial South and Southeast Asia Michael Adas, 2018-10-29 The essays collected in this volume first published in 1998 address the profound changes and disruptions wrought in peasant societies as a result of European colonial domination and the spread of the capitalist world economy from its European base Detailed case study evidence is included in the essays and all are aimed at delineating broader patterns and addressing general questions and debates regarding peasant responses to the varied impact of colonialism and capitalism

Confronting the Present Gavin Smith, 2021-01-07 Anthropologists study other people and worry about it In the past this took the form of a professional desire to make our politics always somewhere else and to do with persons characterized as in some way different from ourselves Now distances shrink and old forms of difference melt as global forces give rise to new processes of differentiation and new possibilities for political collectivities How does this affect the way we might design a politically relevant anthropology This book examines these concerns in light of the author's shift from the study of rather distant people to people and places closer to home a trend to be found within the discipline as a whole How should anthropology respond to this change as it increasingly finds itself in stamping grounds where other disciplines are already well entrenched How will work being done in anthropology intersect with that in other disciplines Will anthropologists have anything to offer debates that have been ongoing in these other disciplines such as those relating to social citizenship and collective identity regionalism and the constitution of space and place hegemony and resistance political organization and cultural expression Conversely what can anthropologists learn from the way other disciplines formulate these issues and problems Written to provoke discussion this timely book aims to initiate a dialogue not only with anthropologists but also with those in related disciplines who share a concern with people politics and modernity As well as anthropologists the issues it tackles will be of interest to geographers economists political scientists social historians and sociologists

Knowing Southeast Asian Subjects Laurie J. Sears, 2011-10-17 The essays in Knowing Southeast Asian Subjects ask how the rising preponderance of scholarship from Southeast Asia is de centering Southeast Asian area studies in the United States The contributions address recent transformations within the field and new directions for research pedagogy and institutional cooperation Contributions from the perspectives of history anthropology cultural studies political theory and libraries pose questions ranging from how a concern with postcolonial and feminist questions of identity might reorient the field to how anthropological work on civil society and Islam in Southeast Asia provides an opportunity for comparative political theorists to develop more sophisticated analytic approaches A vision common to all the contributors is the potential of area studies to produce knowledge outside a global academic framework that presumes the privilege and even hegemony of Euro American academic trends and scholars

Resisting the Rule of Law in Nineteenth-Century Ceylon James S. Duncan, 2020-06-09 This book offers in depth insights on the struggles implementing the rule of law in nineteenth century Ceylon introduced into the colonies by the British as their greatest gift The book argues that resistance can be understood as a form of negotiation to lessen oppressive colonial conditions and that the cumulative impact caused continual adjustments to the criminal justice system weighing it down and distorting it The tactical use of rule of law is explored within the three bureaucracies the police the courts and the prisons Policing was often governed at a distance due to fiscal constraints and economic priorities and the enforcement of law was often delegated to underpaid Ceylonese Spaces of resistance opened up as Ceylon was largely left to manage its own affairs Villagers minor officials as well as senior British government officials alternately used or subverted the rule of law to achieve their own goals In the courts the imported system lacked political legitimacy and consequently the Ceylonese undermined it by embracing it with false cases and information in the interests of achieving justice as they saw it In the prisons administrators developed numerous biopolitical techniques and medical experiments in order to punish prisoners bodies to their absolute lawful limit This limit was one which prison officials prisoners and doctors negotiated continuously over the decades The book argues that the struggles around rule of law can best be understood not in terms of a dualism of bureaucrats versus the public but rather as a set of shifting alliances across permeable bureaucratic boundaries It offers innovative perspectives comparing the Ceylonese experiences to those of Britain and India and where appropriate to other European colonies This book will appeal to those interested in law history postcolonial studies cultural studies cultural and political geography Tracks and Traces Philip Hirsch, Nicholas Tapp, 2010 This volume traces the threads that tie together an understanding of Thailand as a dynamic and rapidly changing society through an examination of the work of one major scholar of the country Andrew Turton Turton s anthropological studies of Thailand cover a wide spectrum from politics and economy to ritual and culture and have been crucial in shaping evolving understandings of Thai society In this collection ten leading specialists on Thailand from a variety of disciplines critically consider aspects of Turton s work in relation to the changing nature of different aspects of Thai society The book tracks the links between past and present scholarship examines the contextuality of scholarship in its times and sheds light on the current situation in Thailand Forests Are Gold Pamela D. McElwee, 2016-04-01 Forests Are Gold examines the management of Vietnam s forests in the tumultuous twentieth century from French colonialism to the recent transition to market oriented economics as the country united prospered and transformed people and landscapes Forest policy has rarely been about ecology or conservation for nature s sake but about managing citizens and society a process Pamela McElwee terms environmental rule Untangling and understanding these practices and networks of rule illuminates not just thorny issues of environmental change but also the birth of Vietnam itself The Origins of Industrial Capitalism in India Rajnarayan Chandavarkar, 1994 The first major study of the relationship between labour and capital in India s economic development in the early twentieth century The author considers the spread of capitalism and the growth of the cotton textile industry Routledge Handbook of the Contemporary Philippines Mark Thompson, Eric Vincent Batalla, 2018-02-19 The Philippines is a fascinating example of a poor country democracy where issues of economic development and poverty political participation and stability as well as ethnicity and migration are crucial The Routledge Handbook of the Contemporary
