Evolutionary Biology at the Crossroads Max K. Hecht, 1989 Reinventing Biology Lynda I. A. Birke, Ruth Hubbard, 1995 Much more than a book about animal welfare it explores how the scientific questions and answers would be different if biology operated from a paradigm of respect for the objects of study Thirteen contributions are arranged in four distinct sections individual topics vary extensively but each is first rate Choice Ruth Hubbard and Lynda Birke have asked an important question how would the practices of biology change if organisms were considered subjects with agency They have gathered an array of excellent scholars and a broad spectrum of perspectives this is a fresh and important question Londa Schiebinger Essays explore how the practice of biology could change if scientists treated the organisms they use in their experiments respectfully what it means to raise animals or plants as experimental resources what guides decisions about which animals to breed for experimental purposes

Shaping Science with Rhetoric Leah Ceccarelli, 2010-11-15 How do scientists persuade colleagues from diverse fields to cross the disciplinary divide risking their careers in new interdisciplinary research programs Why do some attempts to inspire such research win widespread acclaim and support while others do not In Shaping Science with Rhetoric Leah Ceccarelli addresses such questions through close readings of three scientific monographs in their historical contexts Theodosius Dobzhansky s Genetics and the Origin of Species 1937 which inspired the modern synthesis of evolutionary biology Erwin Schrödinger s What Is Life 1944 which catalyzed the field of molecular biology and Edward O Wilson's Consilience 1998 a so far not entirely successful attempt to unite the social and biological sciences She examines the rhetorical strategies used in each book and evaluates which worked best based on the reviews and scientific papers that followed in their wake Ceccarelli's work will be important for anyone interested in how interdisciplinary fields are formed from historians and rhetoricians of science to scientists themselves

Discovery and Explanation in Biology and Medicine Kenneth F. Schaffner, 1993 Kenneth F Schaffner compares the practice of biological and medical research and shows how traditional topics in philosophy of science such as the nature of theories and of explanation can illuminate the life sciences While Schaffner pays some attention to the conceptual questions of evolutionary biology his chief focus is on the examples that immunology human genetics neuroscience and internal medicine provide for examinations of the way scientists develop examine test and apply theories Although traditional philosophy of science has regarded scientific discovery the questions of creativity in science as a subject for psychological rather than philosophical study Schaffner argues that recent work in cognitive science and artificial intelligence enables researchers to rationally analyze the nature of discovery As a philosopher of science who holds an M D he has examined biomedical work from the inside and uses detailed examples from the entire range of the life sciences to support the semantic approach to scientific theories addressing whether there are laws in the life sciences as there are in the physical sciences Schaffner s novel use of philosophical tools to deal with scientific research in all of its complexity provides a distinctive angle on basic questions of scientific evaluation and explanation
