It can now be taken for granted that the number of sites excavated will be up on the previous year and this year is again no exception even allowing for the ban on fieldwork that had to be imposed during the late spring and early summer when there was a threat of the spread of foot and mouth disease Sites were again investigated in every one of the 32 counties Of the summaries received the majority were from Dublin 155 sites followed by Meath 140 and Cork 139 with Kildare coming in fourth with 80 sites The least number came from Fermanagh just one summary followed by Carlow and Tyrone 4 each and Laois 6 No doubt this is indicative of the areas where most road and other development is or is not taking place Again fulachta fiadh are turning up more than any other site type but corn drying kilns are another monument type being recognised more frequently From Ireland

Coming Colum Hourihane, 2001 Lying at Europe's remote western edge Ireland long has been seen as having an artistic heritage that owes little to influences beyond its borders This publication the first to focus on Irish art from the eighth century AD to the end of the sixteenth century challenges the idea that the best known Irish monuments of that period the high crosses the Book of Kells the Tara Brooch the round towers reflect isolated insular traditions Seventeen essays examine the iconography history and structure of these familiar works as well as a number of previously unpublished pieces and demonstrate that they do have a place in the main currents of European art While this book reveals unexpected links between Ireland Late Antique Italy the Byzantine Empire and the Anglo Saxons its center is always the artistic culture of Ireland itself It includes new research on the Sheela na gigs often thought to be merely erotic sculptures on the larger cultural meanings of the Tuam Market Cross and its nineteenth century re erection and on late medieval Irish stone crosses and metalwork The emphasis on later monuments makes this one of the first volumes to deal with Irish art after the Norman invasion The contributors are Cormac Bourke Mildred Budny Tessa Garton Peter Harbison Jane Hawkes Colum Hourihane Catherine E Karkov Heather King Susanne McNab Ragnall Floinn Emmanuelle Pirotte Roger Stalley Kees Veelturf Dorothy Hoogland Verkerk Niamh Whitfield Maggie McEnchroe Williams and Susan Youngs Excavations 1986 Claire Cotter, 1987

Settlement in the Irish Neolithic Jessica Smyth, 2014-05-29 The Irish Neolithic has been dominated by the study of megalithic tombs but the defining element of Irish settlement evidence is the rectangular timber Early Neolithic house the numbers of which have more than quadrupled in the last ten years The substantial Early Neolithic timber house was a short lived architectural phenomenon of as little as 90 years perhaps like short lived Early Neolithic long barrows and causewayed enclosures This book explores the wealth of evidence for settlement and houses throughout the Irish Neolithic in relation to Britain and continental Europe More importantly it incorporates the wealth of new and often unpublished evidence from developer led archaeological excavations and large grey literature resources The settlement evidence scattered across the landscape and found as a result of developer funded work provides the social context for the more famous stone monuments that have traditionally shaped our views of the Neolithic in Ireland It provides the first comprehensive review of the Neolithic settlement of Ireland which enables a more holistic and meaningful understanding of the Irish Neolithic Excavations 1987 ,1988 Excavations 1988 Isabel Bennett,1989 Excavations Organisation of Irish Archaeologists,1991-10-01 Excavations 1992 Isabel Bennett,1993 Excavations 1997 ,1998 Excavations 1988 ,1986 The Prehistoric Artefacts of Northern Ireland Harry Welsh,June Welsh,2022-01-20 The last in a trilogy of monographs designed to provide a baseline survey of the prehistoric sites of Northern Ireland this monograph considers the prehistoric artefacts that have been found in Northern Ireland It aims to provide a basis for further research and also to stimulate local interest in the prehistory of Northern Ireland Early Byzantine Ireland Bernard Mulholland,2021-12-01 This research was conducted towards an MA in Byzantine Archaeology and Text 2004 at the Institute of Byzantine Studies in Queen s University Belfast It is published with the aim of presenting this evidence to a wider audience and to inform future research by others in this field of study The archaeological and historical evidence presented and analysed is surprisingly diverse and relatively plentiful and arguably also compelling Is there any evidence for contacts between the Eastern Roman or Byzantine empire and Ireland and if so what form does that evidence take This book does much to inform that debate

Sites of Prehistoric Life in Northern Ireland Harry Welsh,June Welsh,2018-02-28 This monograph brings together information on all the currently known sites in Northern Ireland that are in some way associated with prehistoric life Compiled from a number of sources it includes many that have only recently been discovered A total of 1580 monuments are recorded in the inventory ranging from burnt mounds to hillforts Excavations 1994 ,1995 Ballynahatty Barrie Hartwell,Sarah Gormley,Catriona Brogan,Caroline Malone,2023-08-15 Just six miles from the center of Belfast County Down on the plateau of Ballynahatty above the River Lagan is one of Ireland s great Neolithic henge monuments the 200 m wide Giant s Ring For over a thousand years this area was the focus of intense funerary ritual seemingly designed to send the dead to their ancestors and secure the land for the living Scattered through the fields to the north and west of the Ring are flat cemeteries standing stones tombs cists and ring barrows ancient monuments that were leveled by the plough when the land was enclosed in the 18th and 19th centuries A great 90 m long timber enclosure with an elaborate entrance and inner temple was first observed through crop marks in aerial photos Excavation of the site between 1990 1999 revealed a complex structure composed of over 400 postholes many over 2 m deep This was a building in the grand style elegantly designed to control space views and access to an inner sanctum containing a platform for exposure of the dead By 2550 BC the timber temple had been swept away in a massive conflagration and the remains dismantled Ballynahatty was one of the last great public ceremonial enterprises known to have been constructed by the Neolithic farmers in Northern Ireland an enterprise proclaiming their enigmatic religion ancestral rights and territorial aspirations This report reconstructs the remarkable building complex and explains the sophistication and organization of its construction and use The report sets the site and excavation in the wider development of the Ballynahatty landscape and its study to the present day Ulster Journal of Archaeology ,2007 Landscapes of the Learned Elizabeth FitzPatrick,2023 Gaelic literati were an elite group in the social hierarchy of late medieval and early modern Celtic northern European societies influencing many areas of public life including education law medicine farming culture and politics FitzPatrick explores the archaeological and historical records to understand this intellectual culture and exercise of power
