Citizenship as a status assumes that all those encompassed by the term citizen are included albeit within the boundaries of the nation state Yet citizenship practices can be both inclusionary and exclusionary with far reaching ramifications for both nationals and non nationals This volume explores the concept of citizenship and its practices within particular contexts and nation states to identify whether its claims to inclusivity are justified This will show whether the exclusionary dimensions experienced by some citizens and non citizens are linked to deficiencies in the concept country specific policies or how it is practised in different contexts The interrogation of citizenship is important in a globalising world where crossing borders raises issues of diversity and how citizenship status is framed This raises the issue of human rights and their protection within the nation state for people whose lifestyles differ from the prevailing ones Besides highlighting the importance of human rights and social justice as integral to citizenship it affirms the role of the nation state in safeguarding these matters It does so by building on Indigenous peoples insights about linking citizenship to connections to other people and the environment and arguing for the inalienability and portability of citizenship rights guaranteed collectively through international level agreements These issues are of particular concern to social workers given that they must act in accordance with the principles of democracy equality and empowerment However citizenship issues are often inadequately articulated in social work theory and practice This book redresses this by providing social workers with insights knowledge values and skills about citizenship practices to enable them to work more effectively with those excluded from enjoying the full rights of citizenship in the nation states in which they reside

Building and Interpreting Possession Sentences Neil Myler, 2024-02-06 A wide ranging generative analysis of the typology of possession sentences solving long standing puzzles in their syntax and semantics A major question for linguistic theory concerns how the structure of sentences relates to their meaning There is broad agreement in the field that there is some regularity in the way that lexical semantics and syntax are related so that thematic roles the different participant roles in an event agent theme goal etc are predictably associated with particular syntactic positions In this book Neil Myler examines the syntax and semantics of possession sentences which are infamous for appearing to diverge dramatically from this broadly regular pattern On the one hand Myler points out possession sentences have too many meanings in any given language the construction used to express archetypal possessive meanings such as personal ownership is also often used to express other apparently unrelated notions body parts kinship relations and many others On the other hand possession sentences have too many surface structures languages differ markedly in the argument structures used to convey the same possessive meanings Myler argues that recent work on the syntax semantics interface in the generative tradition has developed the tools needed to solve these puzzles Examining and synthesizing ideas from the literature and drawing on data from many languages including some understudied Quechua dialects Myler presents a novel way to understand the apparent irregularity of possession sentences while preserving explanations of general cross linguistic regularities offering a unified approach to the syntax and semantics of possession sentences that can also be integrated into a general theory of argument structure
