Joint Fact-Finding in Urban Planning and Environmental Disputes Masahiro Matsuura, Todd Schenk, 2016-10-04 The days of rationalist scientific management and deference to official data are behind us The credibility of experts and the information they provide are regularly challenged officials are routinely provided with conflicting sets of facts as they plan and make decisions and decision makers and stakeholders alike are largely skeptical that technical information will adequately account for the various interests and concerns and lead to the right outcomes They struggle to reconcile technical information with other forms of knowledge and differing interests priorities and perspectives Issues like climate change are complicating matters even further as scientists and technicians must increasingly acknowledge the uncertainty and potential fallibility of their findings and highlight the dynamic nature of the systems they are explaining This book examines how groups looking to plan and make decisions in any number of areas can wade through the imperfect and often contradictory information they have to make fair efficient wise and well informed choices It introduces an emerging and very promising approach called joint fact finding JFF Rather than each stakeholder group marshaling the set of facts that best advance their respective interests and perspectives while discrediting the contradictory facts others provide groups are challenged to collaboratively generate shared sets of facts that all parties accept This book introduces readers to the theory of JFF the value it can provide and how they can adopt this approach in practice It brings together writings from leading practitioners and scholars from around the world that are at the forefront of the JFF approach to science intensive policymaking urban planning and environmental dispute resolution The first set of chapters outlines the concept of JFF and situates it within other bodies of theory and practice The second set of case based chapters elucidates how JFF is being applied in practice This book delivers a new perspective to scholars in the field of public policy urban planning environmental studies and science and technology studies as well as public officials technical experts policy consultants and professional facilitators

The Transformation of Human Rights Fact-finding Philip Alston, Sarah Knuckey, 2016 Fact finding is at the heart of human rights advocacy and is often at the center of international controversies about alleged government abuses In recent years human rights fact finding has greatly proliferated and become more sophisticated and complex while also being subjected to stronger scrutiny from governments Nevertheless despite the prominence of fact finding it remains strikingly under studied and under theorized Too little has been done to bring forth the assumptions methodologies and techniques of this rapidly developing field or to open human rights fact finding to critical and constructive scrutiny The Transformation of Human Rights Fact Finding offers a multidisciplinary approach to the study of fact finding with rigorous and critical analysis of the field of practice while providing a range of accounts of what actually happens It deepens the study and practice of human rights investigations and fosters fact finding as a discretely studied topic while mapping crucial transformations in the field The contributions to this book are the result of a major international conference organized by New York University Law School's Center for Human Rights and Global Justice Engaging the expertise and experience of the editors and contributing authors it offers a broad approach encompassing contemporary issues and analysis across the human rights spectrum in law international relations and critical theory This book addresses the major areas of human rights fact finding such as victim and witness issues fact finding for advocacy enforcement and litigation the role of interdisciplinary expertise and methodologies crowd sourcing social media and big data and international guidelines for fact finding

Fact-Finding without Facts Nancy A. Combs, 2010-07-30 Fact Finding Without Facts explores international criminal fact finding empirically conceptually and normatively After reviewing thousands of pages of transcripts from various international criminal tribunals the author reveals that international criminal trials are beset by numerous and severe fact finding impediments that substantially impair the tribunals ability to determine who did what to whom These fact finding impediments have heretofore received virtually no publicity let alone scholarly treatment and they are deeply troubling not only because they raise grave concerns about the accuracy of the judgments currently being issued but because they can be expected to similarly impair the next generation of international trials that will be held at the International Criminal Court After setting forth her empirical findings the author considers their conceptual and normative implications The author concludes that international criminal tribunals purport a fact finding competence that they do not possess and as a consequence base their judgments on a less precise more amorphous method of fact finding than they publicly acknowledge
