The Fading of the Maoist Vision Rhoads Murphey, 2013-11-05 First published in 1980 This book analyzes Chinese society and evaluates the achievements and failures of the Maoist ideology The central theme is the urban and rural balance in China's development from the Revolution to the late twentieth century The Fading of the Maoist Vision shows how the original Revolutionary blueprint was altered and the ways in which China has steered a different course from that charted by Mao as the ideological vision encountered an increasingly pressing set of economic realities The book is particularly valuable in setting China's achievements in the larger context of global ideas about the problems of national development and by comparing them to the experience of India in its pursuit of the Gandhian ideal The City, Second Edition James A.

In the Images of Development Tridib Banerjee, 2021-06-08 The urban legacy of the Global South since the colonial era and how sustainable development and environmental and social justice can be achieved Remarkably little of the expansive literature on development and globalization considers actual urban form and the physical design of cities as outcomes of these phenomena The development that has shaped historic transformations in urban form and urbanism and the consequent human experiences remains largely unexplored In this book Tridib Banerjee fills this void by linking the idea of development with those of urbanism urban form and urban design focusing primarily on the contemporary cities in the developing world the Global South and their intrinsic prospects in city design Further he examines the endogenous possibilities for the future design of these cities that may address growing inequality and the environmental crisis Banerjee deftly traces the urban legacy of the Global South from the beginning of the colonial era closely examining the economic political and ideological forces that influenced colonial and postcolonial development drawing from relevant experiences of different cities in the developing world and discussing the arguments for the historic parity of these cities with their Western counterparts Finally Banerjee considers essential notions of future city design that are grounded in the critical challenges of sustainable development equity environmental and social justice and diversity and how such outcomes can be achieved This book serves as the opening of a long overdue conversation among design development and planning scholars and practitioners and those interested in the urban development of the Global South

The Scope of Geography (RLE Social & Cultural Geography) Rhoads Murphey, 2014-01-23 This book introduces the beginning student to the major concepts materials and tools of the discipline of geography While it presents geographic theory as whole and for each of its parts the chief emphasis is on concrete analysis and example rather than on abstraction an approach which has proven more successful for undergraduate courses than those with a more heavily theoretical bias The text was extensively re written for the third edition which enhanced its clarity and effectiveness with expanded cartographic coverage

Power, Powerlessness, and Globalization Opoku Agyeman, 2014-08-20 This book is about imperialism driven globalization its historic impact on Africa Latin America and Asia and over time the varied responses of the national political units and regional entities in these continents to the challenges of building countervailing power and laying foundations for independent development Where genuine recovery and empowerment have emerged this has been the result not only of the pursuit of dignitist political and economic values that emphasize robust and sustained productivity geared toward uplifting the living standards and dignity of all the members of the national society but also of the creation of indigenous institutions whose relations with the external world are defined by equality rather than dependence and subordination Opoku Agyeman argues that dignification is the fundamentally necessary response to imperialism s inevitable afflictions of national racial humiliation It is the most crucial ingredient in the complex of motivations that propel formerly weak nation states and regional communities to rise up and defend the honor of their people As Mao Zedong told the world in 1949 Ours will no longer be a nation subject to insult and humiliation We have stood up This study argues emphatically that it is a country s or region s developed or developing capabilities not its historic and continuing victimization or habitual dependence on charitable aid and other altruistic interventions from the international community that determines its success in escaping the scourge of powerlessness and underdevelopment It further maintains that a people who have been brought low through brutal dehumanizing imperialism cannot bypass the need for redemptive empowerment if they wish to regain honor and a proper place in the world Finally it takes issue with Joseph Stiglitz Jeffrey Sachs and others like them whose moralistic critiques of the rapacity of imperialistic globalization carry the unfortunate implication that it is possible for a fair and just world social order to come out of incremental reforms of philanthropically motivated developed powerful countries in the structure and operations of global capitalism Confucian China and its Modern Fate Joseph R. Levenson, 2013-11-05 First published in 1965 These volumes analyze modern Chinese history and its inner process from the pre western plateau of Confucianism to the communist triumph in the context of many themes science art philosophy religion and economic political and social change Volume Three includes Liao P ing and the Confucian Departure from History The place of Confucius in Communist China Historical moral and intellectual significance

Going to the Countryside Yu Zhang, 2020-03-03 Since the beginning of the twentieth century modern Chinese intellectuals reformers revolutionaries leftist journalists and idealistic youth had often crossed the increasing gap between the city and the countryside which made the act of going to the countryside a distinctively modern experience and a continuous practice in China Such a spatial crossing eventually culminated in the socialist state program of down to the villages movements during the 1960s and 1970s What then was the special significance of going to the countryside before that era Going to the Countryside deals with the cultural representations and practices of this practice between 1915 and 1965 focusing on individual homecoming rural reconstruction revolutionary journeys to Yan an the revolutionary going down to the people as well as going to the frontiers and rural hometowns for socialist construction As part of the larger discourses of enlightenment revolution and socialist industrialization going to the countryside entailed new ways of looking at the world and ordinary people brought about new experiences of space and time initiated new means of human communication and interaction generated new forms of cultural production revealed a fundamental epistemic shift in modern China and ultimately created a new aesthetic social and political landscape As a critical response to the urban turn in the past few decades this book brings the rural back to the central concern of Chinese cultural studies and aims to bridge the city and the countryside as two types of important geographical entities which have often remained as disparate scholarly subjects of inquiry in the current state of China studies Chinese modernity has been characterized by a dual process that created problems from the vast gap between the city and the countryside but simultaneously initiated constant efforts to cope with the gap personally collectively and institutionally The process of crossing two distinct geographical spaces was often presented as continuous explorations of various ways of establishing the connectivity interaction and relationship of these two imagined geographical entities Going to the Countryside argues that this new body of cultural productions did not merely turn the rural into a constantly changing representational space most importantly the rural has been constructed as a distinct modern experiential and aesthetic realm characterized by revolutionary changes in human conceptions and sentiments

Urban Poverty, Housing and Social Change in China Ya Ping Wang, 2004-10-21 Economic reform in China has resulted in a widening gap between the rich and the poor and urban poverty has emerged as a key factor which may affect future development This new book examines the poverty problem in relation to housing and social changes in large inland cities and assesses the effectiveness of recent government anti poverty policies The book also puts the Chinese experience in the wider context of transitional economies and discusses the similarities and differences between China and Central and Eastern European countries The book is based on a long period of research on Chinese urban development and benefited from several research projects conducted in Chinese cities It is an important reference for all of those interested in housing urban studies and social change and is a key text for students of the Chinese economy and society Third World Cities In

Hughes, E. R. Hughes, 2014-06-03 First published in 1950 Beginning with ancient times this volume shows how some of the early superstitions became purified through the influence of the Confucianist philosophy how a deep strain of mysticism came from the Taoists and how thereby a worship of Heaven and Earth was evolved Besides the main streams of Confucianism and Buddhism the introduction and development of Christianity into China is also analyzed      Cities Surround The Countryside Robin Visser, 2010-04-12 Explores the cultural significance of the explosive growth of China's cities during the past three decades through interpretations of Chinese fiction cinema visual art architecture and urban design      Cities and City Planning in the People's Republic of China Laurence J. Parish, 1985-11-15 Through interviews with city residents Martin King Whyte and William L Parish provide a unique survey of urban life in the last decade of Mao Zedong's rule They conclude that changes in society produced under communism were truly revolutionary and that in the decade under scrutiny the Chinese avoided ostensibly universal evils of urbanism with considerable success At the same time however they find that this successful effort spawned new and equally serious urban problems bureaucratic rigidity low production and more      Coming Full Circle Eric Jones, 2019-03-04 Analyzing the long term historical development of the major economies around the Pacific Rim in language aimed at the general reader Coming Full Circle throws light on the most important relationships in the region today as well as on the prospects for future economic development and political cooperation The authors begin with a critique of the popular notion of an integrated Pacific region paying particular attention to the influence of geography and environment on population distribution and patterns of regional economic activity Their study covers the diverse indigenous development of pre European times later periods of direct European influence and the evolution of modern day urban societies in the region Finally they track the rise of the United States and Japan as the dominant regional economic powers and forecast changes we can expect to see in the years ahead noting in particular the increasing importance of China
