Pre-School Education in the Arab World Huda Nashif, 2020-09-23 The organized play of the pre school child with a group of peers in an educational atmosphere is now recognised as an important element in child development The Arab states of the Gulf as indeed most of the emerging countries place special emphasis on the education of the young generation and are therefore particularly interested in the creation of pre school education This book first published in 1985 highlights the interplay in Kuwait of the traditional Islamic Arab approach to education with the more Western influenced ideas on the education of the pre school child      Early Childhood Education Gilbert R. Austin,2013-10-22 Early Childhood Education An International Perspective presents the summarized outcomes of a five year cross cultural survey of early childhood education in the Western world It provides understanding of some of the topics of debate surrounding preschool education The text approaches the argument by centering on the history of philosophical thought in early childhood education and offers information on the political and social cultural changes that have inspired interest in facilitating children s early learning experience The book discusses the historical background of early childhood education in the United States It focuses on the ideas and evidence showing the significance of cooperation in international research Another topic of interest is the early childhood education in England Wales Canada and Sweden The section that follows is a review of the aims and objectives of early childhood education The text will provide valuable insights for teachers educators students and researchers in the field of social sciences      Developing Early Childhood Services: Past, Present and Future Peter Baldock,2011-01-16 Since Labour came to power in 1997 early years services have undergone a huge transformation for example a significant increase in the scale of provision the creation of an over arching policy approach Every Child Matters the establishment of new departments focused on children and their families at local and national level new structures designed to promote partnership between different bodies concerned with children s welfare significant changes in the early years curriculum new subsidies for childcare and education and new arrangements for regulation The book would offer an historical account of the development of early years services in the United Kingdom with consideration of developments in Wales Scotland and Northern Ireland as well as England After an Introduction arguing the relevance of an historical perspective it would offer a fairly brief account of developments from the 16th century to the Second World War a similarly brief account of developments from the Second World War up until the Conservative victory of 1979 a more detailed account of developments in the period of Conservative Government 1979 1997 and three chapters with an even more detailed account of developments since 1997 It is easy for those involved to become so focused on the implementation of the latest changes that they lose sight of the process of change itself This book would be intended to help them to understand what has happened so far to evaluate that process and to prepare for the future The objective would be to assist the reader to understand what has happened and why rather than argue that what we have now is or is not better than what went before or than any other set of arrangements that might be conceived      The Routledge Compendium of Primary Education R.J. Flats, Families and the Under-Fives Elizabeth Gittus,2023-08-09 Originally published in 1976 Elizabeth Gittus explores two contemporary social issues which were central to future housing policy in Britain at the time the implications for families with young children of both the increased use of flats in new local authority housing and the sporadic expansion of nursery education and other services for the under fives Discussion of these general issues is referred to the findings of a survey of families occupying local authority flats maisonettes and houses in four selected areas around Newcastle centring on the mothers reactions to their housing situation and its effects on their children The author documents the issues that had contributed to the pattern of new public housing from 1960 to the general election of 1974 Significant published data from a variety of sources are analysed at national regional and local levels The author s findings support the contention that for some young families flat life remains unavoidable and she examines the problem of providing opportunities for young children to play in such surroundings within the wider context of nursery education and other facilities for the pre school child She strongly advocates the fusion of official provision voluntary effort and parents participation in meeting the need for supervised play in the children s free time
