occurred beyond the metropolitan centers. Invented traditions, social and spatial liminality and new ideas of social and aesthetic transformation combined in Jena to create a unique moment of cultural innovation. In the years leading up to the First World War, the Jena publisher Eugen Diederichs envisioned and guided the development of this alternative modernism. Taken up by young writers including Diederichs's wife Helene Voigt, Diederichs' numerous intellectual outsiders from across Germany, Austria and Switzerland, and members of the Free Student movement and of Jena's Sera Circle, this other modernism was above all a youth movement full of energy and bold optimism. Figures such as Rudolf Carnap, Wilhelm Flitner, Hans Freyer, Karl Korsch, and Elisabeth Busse-Wilson emerged from this Jena paradigm. Werner pieces together the story of Jena's modernism in its full richness, complexity, and inner contradictions.

Technologies for Interactive Digital Storytelling and Entertainment Stefan Göbel, Ulrike Spierling, Anja Hoffmann, Ido Iurgel, Oliver Schneider, Johanna Dechau, Axel Feix, 2004-06-11. Interactive Digital Storytelling has evolved as a prospering research topic, banding together formerly disjointed disciplines stemming from the arts and humanities as well as computer science. It's tied up with the notion of storytelling as an effective means for the communication of knowledge and social values since the existence of humankind. It also builds a bridge between current academic trends investigating and formalizing computer games and developments towards the experience-based design of human media interaction in general. In Darmstadt, a first national workshop on Digital Storytelling was organized by ZGDV e.V. in 2000, which at that time gave an impression about the breadth of this new research field for computer graphics. DISTEL 2000. An international follow-up was planned: the 1st International Conference on Technologies for Interactive Digital Storytelling and Entertainment (TIDSE) 2003. Taking place in March 2003, it showed a more focussed range of research, specifically on concepts and first prototypes for automated storytelling and autonomous characters, including modelling of emotions and the user experience. At TIDSE 2004, an established and still growing community of researchers gathered together to exchange results and visions. This confirms the construction of a series of European conferences on the topic, together with the International Conference on Virtual Storytelling (ICVS) conducted in 2001 and 2003 in France, which will be further cultivated.

Max Klinger and Wilhelmine Culture Marsha Morton, 2017-07-05. The Wilhelmine Empire's opening decades, 1870s-1880s, were crucial transitional years in the development of German modernism, both politically and culturally. Here Marsha Morton argues that no artist represented the shift from tradition to unsettling innovation more compellingly than Max Klinger. The author examines Klinger's early prints and drawings within the context of intellectual and material transformations in Wilhelmine society through an interdisciplinary approach that encompasses Darwinism, ethnography, dreams, and hypnosis, the literary Romantic grotesque, criminology, and the urban experience. His work in advance of Expressionism revealed the psychological and biological underpinnings of modern rational man, whose drives and passions undermined bourgeois constructions of material progress, social stability, and class status at a time when Germans were engaged in defining themselves following unification. This book is the first full-length study of

Klinger in English and the first to consistently address his art using methodologies adopted from cultural history With an emphasis on the popular illustrated media Morton draws upon information from reviews and early books on the artist writings by Klinger and his colleagues and unpublished archival sources The book is intended for an academic readership interested in European art history social science literature and cultural studies Damsels Overcome Bobbie
