Teaching Religion and Film Gregory J Watkins, 2008-08-22 In a culture increasingly focused on visual media students have learned not only to embrace multimedia presentations in the classroom but to expect them Such expectations are perhaps more prevalent in a field as dynamic and cross disciplinary as religious studies but the practice nevertheless poses some difficult educational issues the use of movies in academic coursework has far outpaced the scholarship on teaching religion and film What does it mean to utilize film in religious studies and what are the best ways to do it In Teaching Religion and Film an interdisciplinary team of scholars thinks about the theoretical and pedagogical concerns involved with the intersection of film and religion in the classroom They examine the use of film to teach specific religious traditions religious theories and perspectives on fundamental human values Some instructors already teach some version of a film and religion course and many have integrated film as an ancillary to achieving central course goals This collection of essays helps them understand the field better and draws the sharp distinction between merely watching movies in the classroom and comprehending film in an informed and critical way

Brintnall, 2024-05-31 Images of suffering male bodies permeate Western culture from Francis Bacon s paintings and Robert Mapplethorpe s photographs to the battered heroes of action movies Drawing on perspectives from a range of disciplines including religious studies gender and queer studies psychoanalysis art history and film theory Ecce Homo explores the complex ambiguous meanings of the enduring figure of the male body in pain Acknowledging that representations of men confronting violence and pain can reinforce ideas of manly tenacity Kent L Brintnall also argues that they reveal the vulnerability of men s bodies and open them up to eroticization Locating the roots of our cultural fascination with male pain in the crucifixion he analyzes the way narratives of Christ s death and resurrection both support and subvert cultural fantasies of masculine power and privilege Through stimulating readings of works by Georges Bataille Kaja Silverman and more Brintnall delineates the redemptive power of representations of male suffering and violence

Film, Lacan and the Subject of Religion Steve Nolan, 2011-10-20 In their study of religion and film religious film analysts have tended to privilege religion Uniquely this study treats the two disciplines as genuine equals by regarding both liturgy and film as representational media Steve Nolan argues that in each case subjects identify with a represented other which joins them into a narrative where they become participants in an ideological reality Finding many current approaches to religious film analysis lacking Film Lacan and the Subject of Religion explores the film theory other writers ignore particularly that mix of psychoanalysis Marxism and semiotics often termed Screen theory that attempts to understand how cinematic representation shapes spectator identity Using translations and commentary on Lacan not originally available to Screen theorists Nolan returns to Lacan's contribution to psychoanalytic film theory and offers a sustained application to religious practice examining several priest films and real life case study to expose the way liturgical representation shapes religious identity Film Lacan and the Subject of Religion proposes an interpretive strategy by which religious film analysts can develop the kind of analysis that engages with and critiques both cultural and religious practice
