presents an alternative and corrective history of writing for children in the first half of the twentieth century Between 1910 and 1949 a number of British publishers writers and illustrators included children s literature in their efforts to make Britain a progressive egalitarian and modern society Some came from privileged backgrounds others from the poorest parts of the poorest cities in the land some belonged to the metropolitan intelligentsia or bohemia others were working class autodidacts but all sought to use writing for children and young people to create activists visionaries and leaders among the rising generation Together they produced a significant number of both politically and aesthetically radical publications for children and young people This radical children s literature was designed to ignite and underpin the work of making a new Britain for a new kind of Briton While there are many dedicated studies of children s literature and childrens writers working in other periods the years 1910 1949 have previous received little critical attention In this study Kimberley Reynolds shows that the accepted characterisation of inter war children s literature as retreatist anti modernist and apolitical is too sweeping and that the relationship between children s literature and modernism left wing politics and progressive education has been neglected
