Faith And Fiction:

Faith and Fiction Anita Gandolfo, 2007-08-30 In recent years there has been an explosion in the market for fiction on religious topics and themes most notably Dan Brown's The Da Vinci Code. The variety of contemporary religious fiction and the publishing phenomenon surrounding it indicate that this literature transcends any overt religious meaning and is significant in its political and social implications; it is emblematic of the contemporary American Zeitgeist. Traditionally literature is both mirror and lamp reflecting the society that produces it and illuminating the values and interests of that society. Recognizing both of those perspectives, Gandolfo examines Christian literature's place in American culture today and explores the cultural meaning and significance of the wildly popular Christian fiction now available. The phenomenon surrounding Dan Brown's The Da Vinci Code has led to a cottage industry of interpretations, attacks, and commentaries, but one thing is certain: the book has had an enormous impact on American society, culture, and religious understanding, not to mention the publishing industry which scrambles to find similar religious books to feed to an eager public. But The Da Vinci Code is not the only book of its type on the market today. In recent years there has been an explosion in the market for fiction on religious topics and themes, with an entire series devoted to the impending Rapture as described in the Left Behind series. Some fiction does not take an explicitly religious theme as these books do. Instead, writers like Andre Dubus and Ron Hansen imbue their creative work with spiritual and religious themes embedded in the everyday lives and concerns of their characters. Regardless of the specific approach, what is not in doubt is that American readers have made the authors of these works wealthy, as bookstores cannot stock their shelves with enough copies. Why the recent surge of interest in Christian fiction? How does it reflect trends in our culture and our lives? How has it changed our society and our understanding of spirituality and religion? How accurate are these books in terms of the theology they espouse? The variety of contemporary religious fiction and the publishing phenomenon surrounding it indicate that this literature transcends any overt religious meaning and is significant in its political and social implications; it is emblematic of the contemporary American Zeitgeist. Traditionally literature is both mirror and lamp reflecting the society that produces it and illuminating the values and interests of that society. Recognizing both of those perspectives, Faith and Fiction examines Christian literature's place in American culture today and explores the cultural meaning and significance of the wildly popular Christian fiction now available.

A Refuge of Lies Cesáreo Bandera, 2013-10-01 Erich Auerbach's seminal Mimesis: The Representation of Reality in Western Literature was published more than sixty years ago and is deservedly considered a classic. The book brought into focus the fundamental difference that exists between the two basic approaches to the textual representation of reality in Western culture. These two styles, as Auerbach called them, were archetypically displayed in Homer's poems and in the Old Testament respectively Auerbach's differentiation is the starting point for Bandera's insightful work which expands and develops on this theory in several key ways One of the more significant differences between the two styles transcends and grounds all the others It concerns the truth of each of the two archetypal texts or rather the attitude exhibited in those texts with regard to the truth of what they narrate Auerbach Bandera notes is amazed at the Bible's passionate concern for the truth of what it says a concern he found absent in Homer Bandera finds that what the prophet Isaiah called a refuge of lies defines Homer's work He draws on his own research and Ren Girard's theory of the sacred to develop an enhanced perspective of the relationship between these texts Testing the Faith Anita Gandolfo, 1992-01-30 Since 1965 there has been an explosion of fiction about being Catholic clearly a result of confusions in the post Vatican II church American Catholic culture has suffered severe dislocations and fiction has provided one way of coping with those dislocations In Testing the Faith Anita Gandolfo provides an overview of fiction about the American Catholic experience The book considers emerging novelists such as Mary Gordon and Valerie Sayers and established writers like Paul Theroux Among the popular writers covered are Andrew Greeley and William X Keinzle The volume also considers the emergence of new young writers such as Jeanne Schinto Sheila O Connor and Philip Deaver By analyzing patterns in contemporary Catholic fiction Gandolfo shows both the shared interest these writers have in the Catholic experience and their individual perspectives on that experience The book is the first to consider post Vatican II Catholic literature and will be of interest to those concerned with both the Catholic experience and current literature VISIONS of FAITH D. Faith in the Enlightenment? Lieven Boeve, 2006 One of the urgent tasks of modern philosophy is to find a path between the rationalism of the Enlightenment and the relativism of postmodernism

Rationalism alone cannot suffice to solve today's problems but neither can we dispense with reasonable critique. The task is to find ways to broaden the scope of rational thought without losing its critical power. The first part of this volume explores the ideas of Enlightenment philosophers and shows nuances often absent from the common view of the Enlightenment. The second part deals with some of the modern heirs of Enlightenment such as Durkheim, Habermas, and Derrida. In the third part, this volume looks at alternatives to Enlightenment thought in West European, Russian, and Buddhist philosophy. Part four provides over against the Enlightenment a new starting point for the philosophy of religion in thinking about human beings, God, and the description of phenomena.

Fiction, Faith and Humanity Neil Brown, 2020-09-02

In Fiction, Faith and Humanity, Neil Brown considers the central predicament of what it means to be human in the twenty-first century. Namely, how can we make sense of a world that no longer seems to believe in us nor we in it? In an era of twenty-four-hour news coverage where social media continues to present us with a surfeit of stories that render the evils of our time banal, Brown provides us with an astute and timely reminder of the radical goodness of literature and the importance of reclaiming the space to deliberate upon who we are and what we are becoming. Brown's insights into the human condition are compassionate and fearless in equal measure. Taking us on a journey into the depths of what it means to be human, Brown's narrative evidences the author's magisterial command of literature and theology, his sagacious ability to get to the heart of the matter, and his extraordinary capacity to render anew the multitudinous exigencies of being alive in our times. In this truly remarkable work, Brown astutely reminds us that there are no easy answers to understanding our humanity, but that life might not be worth living if we don't continue to ask the questions that remain central to confronting who we are. A must-read for anyone attempting to make sense of the chaos which humanity finds itself confronting today.

The Faith of Men and Other Stories Jack London, 2021-09-03

Mammoths have been extinct for thousands of years. So what do you do when an insanely talented hunter and storyteller describes how he just killed one? Thomas Stevens is a skillful hunter, but his storytelling ability is where his real gift lies. Are these mammoths real? What is being hunted out there? A Relic of the Pliocene is one of the intriguing short stories in Jack London's collection The Faith of Men and Other Stories. All of the stories are set in Yukon, Canada, and they all boast a fast-paced plot, captivating characters, and London's signature charm. Jack London (1876-1916) was an American writer and social activist. He grew up in the working class, but his unflinching realism eventually earned him the status of one of the highest-paid authors of his time. Many of his novels are considered classics today, his most notable being Call of the Wild, Sea Wolf, and White Fang. Fans of Mark Twain, Rudyard Kipling, and Charles Dickens will enjoy his ability to make the mundane captivating.

The Faithful One Michele Chynoweth, 2017-03-21

A wealthy and virtuous man faces the ultimate test of faith in this suspenseful and inspiring modern retelling of Job by the author of The Runaway Prophet. Seth Jacobs has it all: health, wealth, a great career, a mansion in greater Boston, a beautiful wife, and three children. But in a series of reversals beyond his control, Seth loses his many fortunes, one after the next. His friends who suggest God has a reason for inflicting so much loss and pain upon him challenge Seth's faith. At the lowest depths of his suffering, Seth asks God as we all do: Why is this happening to me? And he receives an unexpected answer. A modern day story based on the Bible's Book of Job, The Faithful One inspires us all to keep our faith in the Lord no matter what Chynoweth constructs and then deconstructs. Seth's life with an eye for detail and an inventive sense of how one tragedy can beget the next. Kirkus Reviews. A Grain of Faith Allan Hepburn, 2018-11-15. During and after the Second World War, there was a concerted thinking about religion in Britain. Not only were leading international thinkers of the day, theologians Ronald Niebuhr, Paul Tillich, Jacques Maritain, but leading writers contributed to discussions about religion. Graham Greene, Muriel Spark, and Barbara Pym incorporated miracles, evil, and church going into their novels, while Louis MacNeice, T. S. Eliot, and C. S. Lewis gave radio broadcasts about the role of Christianity in contemporary society. Certainly, the war revived interest in aspects of Christian life. Salvation and redemption were on many people's minds. The Ministry of Information used images of bombed churches to stoke patriotic fervour, and King George VI led a series of Days of National Prayer that coincided with crucial events in the Allied campaign. After the war and throughout the 1950s, approximately 1.4 million Britons converted to Roman Catholicism as a way of expressing their spiritual ambitions and solidarity with humanity on a world-wide scale. Religion provided one way for writers to answer the question: what is man? It also afforded ways to think about social obligation and ethical engagement. Moreover, the mid-century turn to religion offered ways to articulate statehood not from the perspective of nationhood and politics, but from the perspective of moral action and social improvement. Instead of being a retreat into seclusion and solitude, the mid-century turn to religion is a call to responsibility.

Catie Conrad: Faith, Friendship and Fashion Disasters Angie Spady, 2014-09. Typical Christian teen Catie navigates a school dance, an art contest, and her family's plan to spend spring break on an Indian reservation.

Faith Kent D. Smith, 1983. Matters of Faith Kristy Kiernan, 2008-08-05. From the author of Catching Genius, a novel of a young man's search for faith and its unintended consequences. At age twelve, Marshall Tobias saw his best friend killed by a train. It was then that he began his search for faith, delving into one tradition then discarding it for another. His parents, however, have little time for spiritual contemplation. Their focus has been on his little sister, Megan, who suffers from severe food allergies. Now Marshall is home from college with his first real girlfriend, but there is more to Ada than meets the eye, including her beliefs about the evils of medical intervention. What follows is a crisis that tests not only faith, but the limits of family forgiveness and our need to believe.

Acts of Faith and Imagination Brent Little, Mark Bosco, SJ, 2023-08-04. Acts of Faith and Imagination wagers that fiction written by Catholic authors assists readers to reflect critically on the question: what is faith? To speak of a person's faith life is to speak of change and development. As a narrative form, literature can illustrate the dynamics of faith, which remains in flux over the course of one's life. Because human beings must possess faith in something, whether religious or not, it inevitably has a narrative structure: faith ebbs and flows, flourishes and decays, develops and stagnates. Through an exploration of more than a dozen Catholic authors novels and short stories Brent Little argues that Catholic fiction encourages the reader to reflect upon their faith holistically that is the way faith informs one's affections and how a person conceives and interacts with the world as embodied beings Amidst the diverse stories of modern and contemporary fiction a consistent pattern emerges Catholic fiction portrays faith at its most fundamental often unconscious level as an act of the imagination Faith is the way one imagines themselves others and creation A person's primary faith conditions how they live in the world regardless of the level of conscious reflection and regardless of whether this is a religious faith Acts of Faith and Imagination investigates the creative depth and vitality of the Catholic literary imagination by bringing late modern Catholic authors into dialogue with more contemporary ones Readers will then consider well known works such as those by Graham Greene Flannery O'Connor and Muriel Spark in the fresh light of contemporary stories by Toni Morrison Alice McDermott Uwem Akpan and several others
