The Religious Problem with Religious Freedom Robert Joustra, 2017-08-17 Rival understandings of the meaning and practice of the religious and the secular lead to rival public perspectives about religion and religious freedom in North America This book explores how debates over the American Office of Religious Freedom and its International Religious Freedom Act IRFA 1998 and very recent debates over the Canadian Office of Religious Freedom 2013 have pitted at least six basic but very different meanings of the religious and the secular against each other in often undisclosed and usually unproductive ways Properly naming this religious problem is a critical first step to acknowledging and conciliating their practically polar political prescriptions It must be considered how we are to think about religion in political offices both the Canadian and the American experience as an essentially contested term and one which demands better than postmodern paralysis what the author terms political theology This is especially critical since both of these cases are not just about how to deal with religion at home but how to engage with religion abroad where real peril and real practical policy must be undertaken to protect increasingly besieged religious minorities Finally a principled pluralist approach to the religious and the secular suggests a way to think outside the religious problem and productively enlist and engage the forces of religion resurging around the globe The book will be of great use to scholars and students in religion and foreign affairs secularization political theology and political theory as well as professionals and policy makers working in issues relating to religion religious freedom and foreign affairs

The Routledge International Handbook of Religious Education Derek Davis, Elena Miroshnikova, 2013-02-01 How and what to teach about religion is controversial in every country The Routledge International Handbook of Religious Education is the first book to comprehensively address the range of ways that major countries around the world teach religion in public and private educational institutions It discusses how three models in particular seem to dominate the landscape Countries with strong cultural traditions focused on a majority religion tend to adopt an identification model where instruction is provided only in the tenets of the majority religion often to the detriment of other religions and their adherents Countries with traditions that differentiate church and state tend to adopt a separation model thus either offering instruction in a wide range of religions or in some cases teaching very little about religion intentionally leaving it to religious institutions and the home setting to provide religious instruction Still other countries attempt managed pluralism in which neither one nor many but rather a limited handful of major religious traditions are taught Inevitably there are countries which do not fit any of these dominant models and the range of methods touched upon in this book will surprise even the most enlightened reader Religious instruction by educational institutions in 53 countries and regions of the world are explored by experts native to each country These chapters discuss Legal parameters in terms of subjective versus objective instruction in religion Constitutional statutory social and political contexts to religious approaches Distinctions between the kinds of instruction permitted in elementary and secondary schools versus what is allowed in institutions of higher learning Regional assessments which provide a welcome overview and comparison This comprehensive and authoritative volume will appeal to educators scholars religious leaders politicians and others interested in how religion and education interface around the world
