Faith Food And Family In A Yupik Whaling Community:

Faith, Food, and Family in a Yupik Whaling Community Carol Zane Jolles, Elinor Mikaghaq Oozeva, 2011-10-01 For more than fifteen hundred years Yupik and proto Yupik Eskimo peoples have lived at the site of the Alaskan village of Gambell on St Lawrence Island Their history is a record of family and kin and of the interrelationship between those who live in Gambell and the spiritual world on which they depend it is a history dominated by an abiding desire for community survival Relying on oral history blended with ethnography and ethnohistory Carol Zane Jolles views the contemporary Yupik people in terms of the enduring beliefs and values that have contributed to the community s survival and adaptability She draws on extensive interviews with villagers archival records and scholarly studies as well as on her own ten years of fieldwork in Gambell to demonstrate the central importance of three aspects of Yupik life religious beliefs devotion to a subsistence life way and family and clan ties Jolles documents the life and livelihood of this modern community of marine mammal hunters and explores the ways in which religion is woven into the lives of community members paying particular attention to the roles of women Her account conveys a powerful sense of the lasting bonds between those who live in Gambell and their spiritual world both past and present

Racial Ecologies Leilani Nishime, Kim D. Hester Williams, 2018-07-02 From the Flint water crisis to the Dakota Access Pipeline controversy environmental threats and degradation disproportionately affect communities of color with often dire consequences for people s lives and health Racial Ecologies explores activist strategies and creative responses such as those of Mexican migrant women New Zealand Maori and African American farmers in urban Detroit demonstrating that people of color have always been and continue to be leaders in the fight for a more equitable and ecologically just world Grounded in an ethnic studies perspective this interdisciplinary collection illustrates how race intersects with Indigeneity colonialism gender nationality and class to shape our understanding of both nature and environmental harm showing how and why environmental issues are also racial issues Indeed Indigenous critical race and postcolonial frameworks are crucial for comprehending and addressing accelerating anthropogenic change from the local to the global and for imagining speculative futures This forward looking critical intervention bridges environmental scholarship and ethnic studies and will prove indispensable to activists scholars and students alike

Yupik Transitions Igor Krupnik, Michael Chlenov, 2013-11-15 The Siberian Yupik people have endured centuries of change and repression starting with the Russian Cossacks in 1648 and extending into recent years The twentieth century brought especially formidable challenges including forced relocation by Russian authorities and a Cold War ice curtain that cut off the Yupik people on the mainland region of Chukotka from those on St Lawrence Island Yet throughout all this the Yupik have managed to maintain their culture and identity Igor Krupnik and Michael Chlenov spent more than thirty years studying this resilience through original fieldwork In Yupik Transitions they present a compelling portrait of a tenacious people and place in transition an essential portrait as the fast pace of the newest century threatens to erase their way of life forever Spirits of Our Whaling Ancestors Charlotte Coté, 2015-07-21 Following the removal of the gray whale from the Endangered Species list in 1994 the Makah tribe of northwest Washington State announced that they would revive their whale hunts their relatives the Nuuchah-nulth Nation of British Columbia shortly followed suit Neither tribe had exercised their right to whale in the case of the Makah a right affirmed in their 1855 treaty with the federal government since the gray whale had been hunted nearly to extinction by commercial whalers in the 1920s The Makah whale hunt of 1999 was an event of international significance connected to the worldwide struggle for aboriginal sovereignty and to the broader discourses of environmental sustainability treaty rights human rights and animal rights It was met with enthusiastic support and vehement opposition As a member of the Nuuchah-nulth Nation Charlotte Cote offers a valuable perspective on the issues surrounding indigenous whaling past and present Whaling served important social economic and ritual functions that have been at the core of Makah and Nuuchah-nulth societies throughout their histories Even as Native societies faced disease epidemics and federal policies that undermined their cultures they remained connected to their traditions The revival of whaling has implications for the physical mental and spiritual health of these Native communities today Cote asserts Whaling she says defines who we are as a people Her analysis includes major Native studies and contemporary Native rights issues and addresses environmentalism animal rights activism anti treaty conservatism and the public's expectations about what it means to be Indian These thoughtful critiques are intertwined with the author's personal reflections family stories and information from indigenous anthropological and historical sources to provide a bridge between cultures A Capell Family Book SIKU: Knowing Our Ice Igor Krupnik, Claudio Aporta, Shari Gearheard, Gita J. Critical Inuit Studies Pamela R. Stern, Lisa Stevenson, 2006-12-01 Critical Inuit Studies offers an overview of the current state of Inuit studies by bringing together the insights and fieldwork of more than a dozen scholars from six countries currently working with Native communities in the far north The volume showcases the latest methodologies and interpretive perspectives presents a multitude of instructive case studies with individuals and communities and shares the personal and professional insights from the fieldwork and thought of distinguished researchers. The wide ranging topics in this collection include the development of a circumpolar research policy, the complex identities of Inuit in the twenty first century, the transformative relationship between anthropologist and collaborator, the participatory method of conducting research, the interpretation of body gesture and the reproduction of culture, the use of translation in oral history, memory and the construction of a collective Inuit identity, the intricate relationship between politics, indigenous citizenship and resource development, the importance of place names, housing policies and the transition from igloos to permanent houses and social networks in the urban setting of Montreal.

Making a Living Nicole Gombay, 2010-12-13. Until recently most residents of Puvirnituq, an Inuit settlement in Northern Quebec, made their living off the land. Successful hunting, fishing, trapping and gathering so vital to people's survival were underpinned by the expectation that food should be shared. As the Inuit moved into both forced and voluntary, they have had to incorporate the workings of a monetized economy into their own notions of how to operate as a society. Quoting local residents and drawing upon academic literature, the author documents the experiences of an Inuit community as they wrestle with how to accommodate their belief in a sharing economy with the demands of market forces.

The Sociality of Indigenous Dance in Alaska Hiroko Ikuta, 2022-04-11. This book explores indigenous dances and social relationships surrounding the dance activities among Yupik on St. Lawrence Island and Iñupiat in Utqiaġvik, Northern Alaska. Yupik and Iñupiat proudly distinguish their indigenous styles of dance, locally called Eskimo dance, from Western styles of dance such as ballroom, disco or ballet. Based on two years of intensive fieldwork and 18 years of experience living in Alaska, Ikuta sets out to understand how Yupik and Iñupiat dances are at the centre of social relationships with the environment, among humans, between humans and animals, and between Native and the Euro American societies. It also examines how the nature and structure of dance are connected to cultural politics wrought by political, economic and historical events.

The World of Indigenous North America Robert Warrior, 2014-12-05. The World of Indigenous North America is a comprehensive look at issues that concern indigenous people in North America. Though no single volume can cover every tribe and every issue around this fertile area of inquiry, this book takes on the fields of law, archaeology, literature, socio-linguistics, geography, sciences and gender studies among others in order to make sense of the Indigenous experience. Covering both Canada's First Nations and the Native American tribes of the United States, and alluding to the work being done in indigenous studies through the rest of the world, the volume reflects the critical mass of scholarship that has developed in Indigenous Studies over the past decade and highlights the best new work that is emerging in the field. The World of Indigenous North America is a book for every scholar in the field to own and refer to often.

Stern, 2013-09-26 The Inuit do not represent a very large population only 160 000 or so spread over a very large portion of the Arctic region and located in four different countries Although they are a people there are many variations from one group to the next and any study of them must consider both similarities and differences The Historical Dictionary of the Inuit introduces us to the Inuit as they actually are and not as they have been traditionally pictured and some would still like to see them looking after their traditional chores and engaged in time honored practices but rather as a modern people trying to shape their worlds in their own interest This second edition includes an updated chronology as well as an introduction to provide a broader view of who the Inuit are where they live and what they do But it is the dictionary section that is most interesting with many new informative entries on persons places events and institutions shedding light not only on the culture but also on the society economy and politics For those seeking further information there is a considerably expanded bibliography This book is an excellent access point for students researchers and anyone wanting to know more about the Inuit The Force of Family Cara Krmpotich, 2014-01-01 Explains the intimate tie between Haida repatriation and kinship in its associated forms of memory history and respect Back cover The Handbook of Ethical Research with Ethnocultural Populations and Communities Joseph E. Reciprocity Rules Michelle C. Johnson, Edmund (Ned) Searles, 2020-12-16 Reciprocity Rules explores the rich and complicated relationships that develop between anthropologists and research participants over time Focusing on compensation and the creation of friendship and family relationships contributors discuss what when and how researchers and the people with whom they work give to each other in and beyond fieldwork Through reflexivity and narrative the contributors to this edited collection who are in various stages in their professional careers and whose research spans three continents and eight countries reflect on the ways in which they have compensated their research participants and given back to host communities as well as the varied responses to their efforts The contributors consider both material and non material forms of reciprocity stories of successes and failures and the taken for granted notions of compensation friendship and helping In so doing they address the interpersonal dynamics of power and agency in the field examine cultural misunderstandings and highlight the challenges that anthropologists face as they strive to maintain good relations with their hosts even when separated by time and space The contributors argue that while learning following openly discussing and writing about the local rules of reciprocity are always challenging they are essential to responsible research practice and ongoing efforts to decolonize anthropology
