Agency, 2010 Nanotechnology and the Challenges of Equity, Equality and Development Susan E. Cozzens, Jameson Wetmore, 2010-10-10 Nanotechnology is enabling applications in materials microelectronics health and agriculture which are projected to create the next big shift in production comparable to the industrial revolution Such major shifts always co evolve with social relationships This book focuses on how nanotechnologies might affect equity equality in global society

Nanotechnologies are likely to open gaps by gender ethnicity race and ability status as well as between developed and developing countries unless steps are taken now to create a different outcome Organizations need to change their practices and cultural ideas must be broadened if currently disadvantaged groups are to have a more equal position in nano society rather than a more disadvantaged one Economic structures are likely to shift in the nano revolution requiring policymakers and participatory processes to invent new institutions for social welfare better suited to the new economic order than those of the past

Education, Equality and Development: Persistent Paradoxes in Indian Women's History CWDS, 2011 Education Equality and Development Persistent Paradoxes in India Women's History

World Development Report 2012 The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development / The World Bank The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development / The World Bank, 2011-09-28 The lives of women around the world have improved dramatically at a pace and scope difficult to imagine even 25 years ago Women have made unprecedented gains in rights education health and access to jobs and livelihoods More countries than ever guarantee equal rights in property marriage and other domains Gender gaps in primary schooling have closed in many countries while in a third of all countries girls now outnumber boys in secondary school And more young women than men attend universities in 60 countries Women are using their education to participate more in the labor force they now make up for 40 percent of the global labor force and 43 percent of its farmers Moreover women now live longer than men in every region of the world Despite the progress gaps remain in many areas Women are more likely to die relative to males in many low and middle income countries than their counterparts in rich countries especially in childhood and during their reproductive years Primary and secondary school enrollments for girls remain much lower than for boys in many Sub Saharan African countries and some parts of South Asia as well as among disadvantaged populations Women are more likely than men to work as unpaid family laborers or in the informal sector to farm smaller plots and grow less profitable crops operate in smaller firms and less profitable sectors and generally earn less Women especially poor women have less say over decisions and less control over household resources And in most countries fewer women participate in formal politics than men and are underrepresented in the upper echelons The World Development Report 2012 Gender Equality and Development argues that closing these persistent gender gaps matters It matters because gender equality is a core development objective in its own right But it is also smart economics Greater gender equality can enhance productivity improve development outcomes for the next generation and make institutions more representative Building on a growing body of knowledge on the economics of gender equality and development the Report identifies the areas where gender gaps are most significant both intrinsically and in terms of their potential development payoff and where growth alone cannot solve the issues It then sets forth four priorities for public action Reducing excess female mortality and closing education gaps where they remain Improving access to economic opportunities for women Increasing women's voice and agency in the household and in society Limiting the reproduction of gender inequality across generations

Men and Development ,2012-09-13 A wide ranging volume featuring contributions from some of today s leading thinkers and practitioners in the field of men masculinities and development Together contributors challenge the neglect of the structural dimensions of patriarchal power relations in current development policy and practice and the failure to adequately engage with the effects of inequitable sex and gender orders on both men s and women s lives The book calls for renewed engagement in efforts to challenge and change stereotypes of men to dismantle the structural barriers to gender equality and to mobilize men to build new alliances with women s movements and other movements for social and gender justice

Social Justice and Gender Equality G©onseli Berik,Yana van der Meulen Rodgers,Ann Zammit,2009 The contributors to this edited volume explore the effects of various development strategies and associated macroeconomic policies on women s well being and progress towards gender equality Detailed analyses of major UN reports on gender reveal the different approaches to assessing absolute and relative progress for women and the need to take into account the specifics of policy regimes when making such assessments The book argues that neoliberal policies especially the liberalization of trade and investment make it difficult to close gender wage and earnings gaps and new gender sensitive policies need to be devised These and other issues are all examined in more detail in several gendered development histories of countries from Latin America and Asia
