Equity Finance Debt And Equity Markets:

The Politics of Equity Finance in Emerging Markets Department of Political Science Case Western Reserve University
Kathryn C. Lavelle Professor, 2004-09-24 Emerging market stock issuance relative to GDP rose in the late twentieth century to levels that roughly matched that of advanced industrial markets. Nonetheless, the connection between owning shares of emerging market stock and the ability to influence the management of these firms remains fundamentally different from the analogous institutional connection that has evolved in industrial markets. The reasons for the differences in emerging markets are both historical and political in nature. That is, local equity markets have had the objective of providing for some degree of local ownership and control of large economic entities since the late nineteenth century. However, local markets have operated under different global political structures since that time, ranging from imperialism to world wars to sovereign developmental states to neo-liberal states. Shares issued under these different structures have been reconfigured over time, resulting in a lack of convergence along either the Anglo-American or Continental models of corporate governance. The author uses a political science paradigm to explain the growth of emerging equity markets. She departs from conventional economic explanations and examines politics at the micro level of large issues of emerging market stock. The second half of the book presents case studies dealing with emerging market countries in Latin America, Asia, Russia, and Eastern Europe, Africa, and the Middle East. The case studies connect the regional state and firm levels to detail the multiple ownership and control arrangements and to dispel the notion that mere quantitative growth of these markets will lead to a convergence in financial institutional structures along the lines of the industrial core of the world economy.

The Big End of Town Grant Fleming, David Merrett, Simon Ville, 2004-05-24 Never before had a book been published which provides such a comprehensive study of Australian corporate leadership over the past 100 years. Written by a team of economic historians, The Big End of Town, first published in 2004, is a proper business history of twentieth-century Australia. This book traces the evolution of large business enterprises in Australia from the giants of the nineteenth century such as Dalgety's, CSR, and BHP to the contemporary leaders in NewsCorp and Qantas. It delves into why the market leaders became the major players, examines what was crucial to their success, and their roles in leading the Australian economy. By investigating their evolution, this book provides a useful evaluation of the factors that have led to their competitive success and provides an essential guide for all businesses in Australia and beyond developing country capital structures and emerging stock markets Aslı Demirgüç-Kunt, 1992 Are debt and equity finance complements or substitutes Probably complements which means that the existence of active stock markets should increase the volume of business for financial intermediaries Domestic Resource Mobilization and Financial Development G.
