The poems of Catullus and Tibullus, and the Vigil of Venus, a prose tr. with notes, by W.K. Kelly. To which are added the metrical versions of Lamb and Grainger, and a selection of versions by other writers Gaius Valerius Catullus, 1854 Erotica Walter K. Kelly, 2015-07-14 Excerpt from Erotica The Poems of Catullus and Tibullus and the Vigil of Venus A Literal Prose Translation With Notes A meagre array of facts more or less controverted and a few critical remarks are all we can offer towards a biography of Valerius Catullus We learn from the testimony of many ancient writers that he was a native of Verona or its immediate neighbourhood and the Marquis Scipio Maffei himself a Veronese asserts that in his day there were still traits of the language of Catullus in the dialect of his countrymen Whether the poets prajnomen was Cains or Quintus is uncertain the former being assigned to him by Apuleius the latter by Pliny A more important question is that which concerns the dates of his birth and death According to Hieronymus in the Eusebian chronicle he was born b c 87 and died in his thirtieth year b c 57 The second date is undoubtedly erroneous for we liave positive evidence from his own works that he was alive in the consulship of Vatinius b c 47 It is evident too that he must have survived at least till b c 45 for Cicero in his Letters talks of the verses of Catullus against Caesar and Mamurra xxix as newly written and first seen by Caesar in that year The chronologers mistake as to the time of the poets death throws some doubt also on that which he assigns to his birth We shall however be exact enough for all literary purposes if we conclude with Dunlop that Catullus was nearly contemporary with Lucretius having come into the world a few years after him and having survived him but a short period It is not certain that the poet belonged to the patrician family of the Valerii but his father must have been a person of some consideration for he was the friend and habitual entertainer of Julius Caesar The son took up his abode in Rome in the very spring of youth Ixviii 15 and plunged without restraint into all the expensive pleasures of the best that is to say the most debauched society This is sulhcient to account for the jocular complaints of poverty interspersed through his writings About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
