The economics of knowledge is an emerging field that explores the generation exploitation and dissemination of technological knowledge Technological knowledge cannot any longer be regarded as a homogenous good that stems from standardized generation processes Quite the opposite technological knowledge appears more and more to be a basket of heterogeneous items resources and even experiences All of these sources which are both internal and external to the firm are complementary as is the interplay between a bottom up and top down generation processes In this context the interactions between the public research system private research laboratories and various networks of learning processes within and among firms play a major role in the creation of technological knowledge In this Handbook special attention is given to the relationship among technological knowledge and both upstream scientific knowledge and related downstream resources By addressing the antecedents and consequences of technological knowledge from both an upstream and downstream perspective this Handbook will become an indispensable tool for scholars and practitioners aiming to master the generation and the use of technological knowledge
