Recession Paul A. Geroski, Paul Gregg, 1997-10-02 The text examines how companies cope with the pressures which are unleashed by recessions It is based on a large scale survey undertaken in the spring of 1993 which involved the participation of more than 600 leading UK companies The questionnaire data was combined with a long enough time series of data on the financial performance of most of the companies to enable us to trace effects left over from the recession in the early 1980s The main issues examined in the book are what makes companies vulnerable to recessionary pressures How do companies typically respond to these pressures How have recessionary pressures been transmitted back into labour markets and what kinds of institutional changes have they induced Finally do recessionary pressures stimulate innovative activity From School to Productive Work Helvia Bierhoff, S. Mayes, Peter Hart, 1994-10-06 This 1994 book offers a comparison of British and German industries reaction to the opportunities and threats offered by the single European market SEM It outlines the effect that the SEM was expected to have on the two countries and contrasts this with their actual progress based on published data and a detailed study of four industries While the single European market has had an impact many measures have had a far weaker effect than expected The existence of other barriers not tackled by the SEM programme weakened measures poor implementation global business trends and the recent recession helps dominate the impact of the SEM Nevertheless the SEM stands out as one of the striking influences on British and German industries for many years Germany with its geographical advantage and stronger manufacturing seems better placed to benefit but the less regulated and often more flexible UK economy may have competitive advantages as the pressures increase
