

An aerial photograph of a beach at sunset or sunrise. The ocean waves are breaking onto the shore, creating white foam. The sand is a warm, golden-brown color. The sky is not visible, but the lighting suggests a low sun. The text is overlaid on a dark, semi-transparent rectangular background.

Reproductive Freedom, Torture and International Human Rights Ronli Sifris, 2013-12-13 This book contributes to a feminist understanding of international human rights by examining restrictions on reproductive freedom through the lens of the right to be free from torture and other cruel inhuman or degrading treatment Ronli Sifris challenges the view that torture only takes place within the traditional paradigm of interrogation punishment or intimidation of a detainee arguing that this traditional construction of the concept of torture prioritises the experiences of men over the experiences of women given that the pain and suffering from which women disproportionately suffer frequently occurs outside of this context She does this by conceptualising restrictions on women's reproductive freedom within the framework of the right to be free from torture The book considers the gendered nature of international law and the gender dimensions of the right to be free from torture It examines the extension of the prohibition of torture to encompass situations beyond the traditional detainee context in recent years to encompass situations such as rape and female genital mutilation It goes on to explore in detail whether denying access to abortion and involuntary sterilization constitutes torture or other cruel inhuman or degrading treatment under international law The book looks at whether limitations on reproductive freedom meet the determining criteria of torture

which are severe pain or suffering being intentionally inflicted being based on discrimination linked in some way to a State official whether they constitute lawful sanctions and the importance of the concept of powerlessness In doing so the book also highlights how this right may be applicable to other gender based abuses including female genital mutilation and how this right may be universally applied to allow women worldwide the right to reproductive freedom

Children's Right to Freedom, Care and Enlightenment Bertram Bandman, 2013-10-28 Professor Bandman presents a philosophical argument in answer to the question How do we justifiably bring up our children Bandman suggests that the status of children's rights in collusion with the method by which children are raised result in the strength and breadth of our rights as adults This is an eminently worthwhile study involving the interests of younger and older people alike engaging us all in reflective examination of issues right at our doorsteps

Fichte and Kant on Freedom, Rights, and Law Gunnar Beck, 2008-01-01 Gunnar Beck provides the first comparative book length introduction to Fichte's and Kant's theories of freedom law and politics together with an overview of the metaphysical and epistemological edifice underpinning their thinking He offers a critical analysis of the underlying normative foundations of Kant's and Fichte's theories of rights and questions the analytical link between the idea of freedom as rational self determination or autonomy and a rights based political liberalism

The Right to Religious Freedom in International Law Anat Scolnicov, 2010-10-18 This book analyses the right to religious freedom in international law drawing on an array of national and international cases Taking a rigorous approach to the right to religious freedom Anat Scolnicov argues that the interpretation and application of religious freedom must be understood as a conflict between individual and group claims of rights and that although some states based on their respective histories religions and cultures protect the group over the individual only an individualistic approach of international law is a coherent way of protecting religious freedom Analysing legal structures in a variety of both Western and Non Western jurisdictions the book sets out a topography of different constitutional structures of religions within states and evaluates their compliance with international human rights law The book also considers the position of women's religious freedom vis vis community claims of religious freedom of children's right to religious freedom and of the rights of dissenters within religious groups
