Lee-AhMat, 2020-09-29 There is a great need for poetry in this world Words twisted together can let the imagination travel through time and place and connects you with a sense of emotional expression and understanding like all forms of Art In Cockatoos in the Mangroves Lee AhMat an Aboriginal Torres Strait Islander woman covers many of the social and life issues that affect Indigenous Australian Sharing our knowledge comes with great responsibility which is passed down from many generations before us Kyra Kum Sing Curator Boomalli Aboriginal Artists Cooperative Australia With passion and raw honesty Vanessa S Lee AhMat is unapologetic as she writes from a sense of knowing and doing perspective of being an Aboriginal Torres Strait Islander woman in contemporary Australia She courageously pens issues experienced by black Indigenous people such as racism and discrimination lived humor earthly connections and environmental disruptions Through poetry she takes the reader on a deep journey to the darker side of being human as reality is exposed and life is painted through a myriad of emotions Cockatoos in the Mangroves is confessional and at the same time artfully expressive debut collection of poetry that will leave a fiery footprint on your spirit Taste, 2003-01-01 The best of the best from what is considered by many to be Australia s outstanding Creative Writing course show their considerable skills Beyond the Black Stump of My Pencil Hilarie Lindsay, 1993 Collection of 75 pieces of prose and verse on varied themes by members of the Fellowship of Australian Writers Woven with Brown Thread Upile Chisala, 2021-10-20 Woven with Brown Thread This anthology is the result of deep heart work Seeing Woven with Brown Thread come alive is one of my greatest dreams realized When I started the Khala Series writing mentorship program my hope was to sit in a room with other poets and work through our work In 2019 every other Saturday in Johannesburg for weeks Khala Series happened We met we laughed we held each other we cried and we occasionally wrote It was such a filling experience to be among the words and those who live to navigate them With 2020 came the pandemic and lockdown and Khala like other things in the world came to a complete stop Navigating sadness desperation and uncertainty reminded me of how poetry is necessary Poetry and being in community with other poets has always given me the space to breathe consider and to simply exist In 2021 I decided that

Khala Series needed to continue if even virtually so the 100 Poem Project was born The Centre for the Less Good Idea was happy to support this project as it revels in work that helps to celebrate artists in all stages of their lives and practices Through social media I issued a call to black women and nonbinary persons to submit poems dear to them A flood of applications came from all over and I was both overwhelmed and overjoyed I had worried that I would not receive any applications and by some great fate 500 people applied 25 Poets were chosen to be in this anthology and from their bios you will learn how these unique previously unpublished poets come from different countries have different professions and religions backgrounds and styles They were all chosen for their magic There was no prompt for the applicants and no themes Poems came as they were and somehow managed to fit together neatly The poems have been housed in five chapters The first chapter Ritual is a celebration of everyday practices and what we do to get by and get through Facing a pandemic practices that bring us back to the center are important now more than ever From a poem about plantain to a poem about prayer poems in this chapter manage to find the majesty in the mundane The next chapter Inheritance deals with navigating things of the blood There are habits and features we may inherit and there are traditions we follow and those we break Dealing with history memory and heritage seems an essential part of all journeys to the self Somehow looking backwards every so often helps us look forward more confidently and with better understanding The Chichewa word khala means to be or to sit or to exist In this book s third chapter Being live the poems that celebrate existence Here are the poems around body skin and names and life on the margins The poets in this series grapple with what it means to exist as themselves sometimes in love with all that is them and sometimes not The last two chapters tackle deep hurt and deep love Poems around loss danger and the pain experienced at the hand of governments exist in the chapter Wound The failing of systems to protect those who live in the margins is central to this chapter The collection s last chapter Tender gathers poems that speak to joy and love as a final note to the reader that these two things are possible Tender is filled with love poems Love poems for ourselves Love poems for others Love poems for nature The tender act is opening your heart to joy This book is filled with poems for the journey and all your new favourite poets Through Zoom calls and Google Doc forms and all the conveniences of the internet this book came to be This book like the lives of those who have contributed to it has been woven together with brown thread May we all remember the kind thread that ties us to each other May the poems do their work

The Big Black Thing Michael Mohammed Ahmad, Winnie Dunn, Ellen van Neerven, 2018-04-30 The Big Black Thing Chapter 2 is the second issue in a new series of prose and poetry by emerging and established writers from Indigenous migrant and refugee backgrounds

The Summer We Didn't Die Christine Coates, 2021-10-08 The Summer We Didn't Die is Christine Coates third poetry collection It is an assured tender collection that offers the reader a way to think about the mysteries at the heart of what it means to be human in this place and time

The Big Black Thing Michael Mohammed Ahmad, Winnie Dunn, Ellen Van Neerven, 2017-05-05 Annotation The Big Black Thing Chapter 1 is the first issue in a new series of poetry and prose from emerging and established writers of Indigenous migrant and refugee backgrounds      The Short Story of You and I Richard James Allen, 2019 From long narrative lines to fine boned lyrical loops and ties that bind these poems into place Richard James Allen has taken risks with language that mark this as his most adventurous and significant book to date Anthony Lawrence Allen's subject is being itself and the way our biological and mental dimensions interact with human intelligence and love being the unifying forces for this interaction Adam Aitken      The Write Season Helen Cerne, 1993

Night Writing Kathryn Lomer, 2014 A vivid new collection of poetry from one of Tasmania's premier talents each of the poems in this work are influenced by Kathryn Lomer's considerable skills as a storyteller and convey sensuality fresh imagery and tension between the grounded and the whimsical The volume which is divided into five interconnecting sections begins with a poem about the courage to love and centers on the observation I once read that love is mainly courage Drawing inspiration from the Tasmanian wilderness and landscape these works also touch upon themes of craft and creativity and motherhood and resilience
