Fridays Footprint:

Friday's Footprint Leslie Brothers, 2001-10-11 A psychiatrist who has received international recognition for her research on the neural basis of primate social cognition Leslie Brothers M D offers here a major argument about the social dimension of the human brain drawing on both her own work and a wealth of information from research laboratories neurosurgical clinics and psychiatric wards Brothers offers the tale of Robinson Crusoe as a metaphor for neuroscience s classic and flawed notion of the brain a starkly isolated figure working praying writing alone But the famous castaway of literature she notes came from society and returned to society So too with our brains they have evolved a specialized capacity for exchanging signals with other brains they are designed to be social This can be seen in the brain s sensitive attunement to the meanings of facial expressions and physical gestures and the way it assigns mental lives to physical bodies a feat we too often take for granted Brothers describes fascinating case studies that show that certain kinds of brain damage can destroy a patient s ability to interpret faces leaving him or her with the sense that they are surrounded by zombies She takes us down to the level of the individual neuron exploring the response of brain cells to social events Perhaps most important she connects neuroscience psychiatry and sociology as never before showing how our daily interaction creates an organized social world a network of brains that generates meaningful behavior and thought Our emotions and our sense of self have no existence outside of a social context Brothers conducts her argument with grace and style By broadening our approach to the brain this groundbreaking book makes an important contribution to our understanding of the human mind programs as American Studies Women's Studies and Afro American Studies Brantlinger also examines the role of feminist criticism which has been particularly crucial in both Britain and the U S

Neurosociology David D. Franks, 2010-04-19 As a career sociologist I first became interested in neurosociology around 1987 when a graduate student lent me Michael Gazzaniga's The Social Brain If the biological human brain was really social I thought sociologists and their students should be the first not the last to know As I read on I found little of the clumsy reductionism of the earlier biosociologists whom I had learned to see as the arch enemy of our field Clearly reductionism does exist among many neuroscientists But I also found some things that were very social and quite relevant for sociology After reading Descartes's Error by Antonio Damasio I learned how some types of emotion were necessary for rational thought a very radical innovation for the long honored objective rationalist I started inserting some things about split brain research into my classes mispronouncing terms like amygdala and being corrected by my students That instruction helped me realize how much we professors needed to catch up with our students I also wrote a review of Leslie Brothers Fridays Footprint How Society Shapes the Human Mind I thought if she could write so well about social processes maybe I could attempt to do something similar in connection with my field For several years I found her an e-mail partner with a wonderful sense of humor She even retrieved copies of her book for the use of my graduate students when I had assigned it for a seminar

Footprints David Farrier, 2020-03-03 A profound meditation on climate change and the Anthropocene and an urgent search for the fossils industrial chemical geological that humans are leaving behind What will the world look like in ten thousand years or ten million What kinds of stories will be told about us In Footprints In Search of Future Fossils the award winning author David Farrier explores the traces we will leave for the very distant future Modern civilization has created objects and landscapes with the potential to endure through deep time whether it is plastic polluting the oceans and nuclear waste sealed within the earth or the 30 million miles of roads spanning the planet Our carbon could linger in the atmosphere for 100 000 years and the remains of our cities will still exist millions of years from now as a layer in the rock These future fossils have the potential to reveal much about how we lived in the twenty first century Crossing the boundaries of literature art and science Footprints invites us to think about how we will be remembered in the myths and stories of our distant descendants Traveling from the Baltic Sea to the Great Barrier Reef and from an ice core laboratory in Tasmania to Shanghai one of the world's biggest cities Farrier describes a world that is changing rapidly with consequences beyond the scope of human understanding As much a message of hope as a warning Footprints will not only alter how you think about the future it will change how you see the world today

Surprise Christopher R. Miller, 2015-09-25 Today in the era of the spoiler alert surprise in fiction is primarily associated with an unexpected plot twist but in earlier usage the word had darker and more complex meanings Originally denoting a military ambush or physical assault surprise went through a major semantic shift in the eighteenth century from violent attack to pleasurable experience and from external event to internal feeling In Surprise Christopher R Miller studies that change as it took shape in literature ranging from Paradise Lost through the novels of Jane Austen Miller argues that writers of the period exploited and arbitrated the dual nature of surprise in its sinister and benign forms Even as surprise came to be associated with pleasure it continued to be perceived as a problem a sign of ignorance or na vet an uncontrollable reflex a paralysis of rationality and an experience of mere novelty or diversion for its own sake In close readings of exemplary scenes particularly those involving astonished or petrified characters Miller shows how novelists sought to harness the energies of surprise toward edifying or comic ends while registering its underpinnings in violence and mortal danger In the Roman poet Horace s famous axiom poetry should instruct and delight but in the early eighteenth century Joseph Addison signally amended that formula to suggest that the imaginative arts should surprise and delight Investigating the significance of that substitution Miller traces an intellectual history of surprise involving Aristotelian poetics Cartesian philosophy Enlightenment concepts of the passions eighteenth century literary criticism and aesthetics and modern emotion theory Miller goes on to offer a fresh reading of what it means to be surprised by sin in Paradise Lost showing how Milton s epic both harks back to the symbolic functions of violence in allegory and looks ahead to the moral contours of the novel Subsequent chapters study the Miltonic ramifications of surprise in the novels of Defoe Haywood Richardson Fielding and Sterne as well as in the poems of Wordsworth and Keats By focusing on surprise in its inflections as emotion cognition and event Miller s book illuminates connections between allegory and formal realism between aesthetic discourse and prose fiction and between novel and lyric and it offers new ways of thinking about the aesthetic and ethical dimensions of the novel as the genre emerged in the eighteenth century

Specters of Conquest Adam Lifshey, 2010-06-12 This book intervenes in transatlantic and hemispheric studies by positing America as not a particular country or continent but a foundational narrative in which conquerors arrive at a shore intent on overwriting local versions of humanity culture and landscape with inscriptions of their own design This imposition of foreign textualities however dominant is never complete because the absences of the disappeared still linger manifestly still are present That apparent paradox results in a haunted America whose conquest is always partial and whose conquered are always contestatory Readers of scholarship by transatlanticists such as Paul Gilroy and hemispherists such as Diana Taylor will find new conceptualizations here of an America that knows no geographic boundaries whose absences are collective but not necessarily interrelated by genealogy The five principal texts at hand Columbus s diary of his first voyage the Popol Vuh of the Maya K'iche Defoe s Robinson Crusoe Evita s Cuando los Combes luchaban the first African novel in Spanish and Pynchon s Mason Dixon are examined as foundational stories of America in their imaginings of its transatlantic commencement Interspersed too are shorter studies of narratives by William Carlos Williams Rigoberta Menchú Ivar Néz Cabeza de Vaca Jos Mart Mark Knopfler former lead singer of Dire Straits and Gabriel García Márquez These texts are rarely if ever read together because of their discrete provenances in time and place yet their juxtaposition reveals how the disjunctions and ruptures that took place on the eastern and western shores of the Atlantic upon the arrival of Europeans became insinuated as recurring and resistant absences in narratives ostensibly contextualized by the Conquest The book concludes by proposing that Mary Shelley's Frankenstein is the great American novel After Specters of Conquest Indigenous Absence in Transatlantic Literatures America will never seem the same Empire Islands Rebecca Weaver-Hightower, 2007 Through a detailed unpacking of the castaway genre's appeal in English literature Empire Islands forwards our understanding of the sociopsychology of British Empire Rebecca Weaver Hightower argues convincingly that by helping generations of readers to make sense of and perhaps feel better about imperial aggression the castaway story in effect enabled the expansion and maintenance of European empire Empire Islands asks why so many colonial authors chose islands as the setting for their stories of imperial adventure and why so many postcolonial writers write back to those island castaway narratives Drawing on insightful readings of works from Thomas More's Utopia to Caribbean novels like George Lamming's Water with Berries from canonical works such as Robinson Crusoe and The Tempest to the lesser known A Narrative of the Life and Astonishing Adventures of John Daniel by Ralph Morris Weaver Hightower examines themes of cannibalism piracy monstrosity imperial aggression and the concept of going native Ending with analysis of contemporary film and the role of the United States in global neoimperialism Weaver Hightower exposes how island narratives continue not only to describe but to justify colonialism Rebecca Weaver Hightower is assistant professor of English and postcolonial studies at the University of North Dakota

Ecological Footprints Dawn M. Nothwehr, 2012 The Franciscan vision offers a powerful antidote to the moral malaise that prevents ordinary Christians from making the necessary choices to live more simply and share the world's goods more equitably Ecological Footprints unfolds the theological spiritual and ethical treasure trove of Christianity especially as it has been developed and lived in Franciscan theology and tradition as it relates to our efforts to achieve sustainable living

Inhabited by Stories Nancy A. Barta-Smith, Danette DiMarco, 2012-11-30 Intertextuality has signaled change appropriation adaptation and derivation It has focused readers on irresolvable questions of influence and origination progressive or regressive movement across continents periods and media Inhabited by Stories Critical Essays on Tales Retold takes a different approach What would a model of literary study look like that steps out of time's river and embraces not only the presence and proximity of the world to the senses but also of the past and the future to the present here and now When stories inhabit us imagination and memory extend our ability to see and feel Phenomenological experience is lived not just thought Such a perspective suggests that the past and future inhabit the present increase the depth of sensory perception itself and enrich the range of our affective and ethical responses Grounded in the lived experience of reading this perspective offers an alternative to an idea of intertextuality as simply following lines of influence and appropriation It focuses on the expansion of experience created by telling and retelling stories Ironically for literary theorists and critics perhaps the highest form of both praise and critique is a tale retold since such retellings attest to literature's instructive power and its perennial regeneration

Literature Through Film Robert Stam, 2004-10-22 This

Feuer, Lewis S Feuer shows that the gestation of the hypotheses of original minded scientists such as Darwin Einstein or Bohr is in large part a subconscious process Scientists try to project upon the world structural laws that beside fitting the given physical realities will also realize their own emotional longings among alternative worldviews Repeatedly too in examining the standpoints of philosophical figures ranging from Spinoza Descartes Kant and Mill to contemporary figures such as Einstein Lovejoy and Hook Feuer illumines how sociological antipathies project themselves into scientific divergences Feuer delves into the bearing of emotive beliefs such as pacifism socialism anti Semitism upon the formation of concurrent worldviews often fixations of scientific belief held with the same passion in science as in religion
