Going To War In World War Two Armies Of The Past S:

United States Army in World War II Harry L. Coles, Albert K. Weinberg, 1986 A documentary history with brief narrative introductions illustrating the evolution of civil affairs policy and practice in the Mediterranean and European theaters Most important of all in World War II soldiers became governors in a much broader sense than ever before so much more than was foreseen that the Army's specialized training proved scant preparation for perhaps the most important phase of their role They became not merely the administrators of civilian life for the Army's immediate needs but at the same time the executors and at times even by force of circumstances the proposers of national and international political policy This broader role arose from the fact that in World War II the Allies strove to realize from the very beginning of occupation political aims that had usually not been implemented during war or if during war at all not until active hostilities had ended Thus in enemy countries civil affairs officials were immediately to extirpate totalitarian governmental and economic systems in liberated countries they were as soon as possible to aid in restoring indigenous systems and authorities and in both types of countries they were to make an all out effort to effect gradual transition toward the envisaged postwar national and international order

United States Army in World War II. ,1961 United States Army in World War II United States. Military History, Office of the Chief of,1964 Post-Communist Poland - Contested Pasts and Future Identities Ewa Ochman,2013-07-18 This book explores the reinterpretations of Poland's past which have been undertaken by Polish national and local elites since the fall of communism It focuses on remembrance practices and traces the de commemorating of communism to examine the ways in which collective remembering and forgetting shapes present power constellations in Poland and impacts on foreign and domestic policy The book outlines the detail of the new hegemonic national myths which are being established but also investigates fragmentation and diversification of commemorative practices at the local level that has the most potential to challenge the dominant vision of national Polish identity historically centred on martyrdom heroism and independence as less relevant to Poland's new aspirations for the future The New York Times Living History: World War II, 1942-1945:
