Never Mind Where the Ball Went and Other Golf Stories Forbes Abercrombie,2010-11-22 Have you ever thought of throwing your clubs with a bit of draw Or deliberately playing slowly to rattle the opposition Have you used the well timed tactless remark to gain advantage Read on and realise how such behaviour rebounds on the club golfer Discover also the satisfaction of taking part in the running of events and of the unusual way of stifling discussion in Committee Whoever would have thought of cutting the holes square for a change and horrified the greenkeeper Where does the red wolf fit in The author Forbes Abercrombie is a retired surgeon who took up golf in his early twenties getting down to a single figure handicap at his best He accompanied his clubs to many courses in many countries and had many adventures in play He has chosen thirty episodes which illuminate the corners of the great game You will not find any instructional material here just the moments that gave him most pleasure at the time Incredible

though these stories may seem every story is true There is something for everyone in this slim volume A word of warning though this is not recommended bedtime reading as you will have finished the book before you can put it down

Subjectivities, Knowledges, and Feminist Geographies Liz Bondi, 2002 Research about people always makes assumptions about the nature of humans as subjects This collaboration by a group of feminist researchers looks at subjectivity in relation to researchers the researched and audiences as well as at the connections between subjectivity and knowledge The authors argue that subjectivity is spatialized in embodied multiple and fractured ways challenging the dominant notions of the rational bounded subject A highly original contribution to feminist geography this book is equally relevant to social science debates about using qualitative methodologies and to ongoing discussions on the ethics of social research
