Freedoms Plow Teaching In The Multicultural Classroom:

Freedom's Plow Jim Fraser, Theresa Perry, 2013-10-15 First Published in 1993 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company inside/out Rebecca A. Martusewicz, William M. Reynolds, 2012-12-06 This engaging text examines issues in education and curriculum theory from multiple critical perspectives Students are encouraged to look at education from the inside the complex processes methods and relations that operate within schools and from the outside the larger social economic and political forces that have affected schools over time Each essay begins with Guiding Questions and concludes with Questions for Discussion Teachers as Researchers activities and Suggested Readings Handbook of Literacy and Technology David Reinking, Michael C. McKenna, Linda D. Labbo, Ronald D. Kieffer, 1998-04-01 The major shift going on today in the technologies of reading and writing raises important questions about conventional conceptions of literacy and its role in education society and culture What are the important characteristics of electronic forms of reading and writing distinguishing them from printed forms To what extent and in what ways is literacy being transformed by new technologies This central question is addressed in this volume from diverse multidisciplinary perspectives The contributing authors focus on a guiding question in one of the following areas which correspond to the major sections of the book Transforming Texts What are the new differences between printed and electronic texts and what are the implications of new textual forms for defining literacy especially in regard to teaching and learning in schools Transforming Readers and Writers How do electronic reading and writing change conceptualizations of literacy development from childhood through adulthood Transforming Classrooms and Schools What are the effects of introducing new reading and writing technologies into schools and classrooms Transforming Instruction How can instruction be adapted in response to the changing literacy landscape and how can teachers and students exploit forms of reading and writing to enhance teaching and learning Transforming Society What are the broad societal implications of the increasing prevalence of electronic forms of reading and writing Transforming Literacy Research What are the questions that must be addressed as digital reading and writing become more common and what approaches to research will be most useful in addressing those questions This volume is the result of an interactive process The contributors met as a group to discuss drafts of their chapters at a one day meeting convened and sponsored by the National Reading Research Center and had read each others chapters prior to this gathering That meeting was followed by a two day conference attended by approximately 180 researchers educators and policymakers who responded to an open invitation to present papers and to attend sessions focusing on the six major themes of the book Contributors then revised their chapters based on interactions with fellow contributors conference participants and volume editors Thus this work is more than just a compilation of the individual authors views Rather it represents a synthesis of a broad range of current thinking about how literacy is being and may be transformed by technology Multiliteracies Bill Cope, Mary Kalantzis, 2000 First Published in 1999 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company Change

Agents in Science Education, 2006-01-01 In this engaging and well crafted book Change Agents in Science Education situates the science educator in dynamic social political and cultural environments where individuals are engaged in science for change A wide range of educational contexts are described in the book including urban school settings in the U S slum communities in Mumbai India an agricultural community in Benin Africa a children s educational television program production company in the U S In each context powerful examples of how science was enacted to transform ways of thinking and doing are demonstrated Each contributor shares experiences with science and the challenges triumphs and lessons learned which need to be considered and addressed as part of the role of the science educator Change it is argued needs to be facilitated on a variety of levels in order for learning to take place Science educators working in a wide range of settings community based educational groups and students and researchers interested in formal and informal science education will benefit from the perspectives provided in this book Language, Literacy, and Power in Schooling Teresa L.

McCarty, 2006-04-21 This text brings critical ethnographic perspectives to bear on the negotiation of language literacy and power in culturally and linguistically diverse contexts showing how literacy and schooling are negotiated by children and adults and how schooling becomes a key site of struggle over whose knowledge discourses and literacy practices count in Today's Schools Patrick M. Jenlink (Ed), Faye Hicks Townes, 2009-05-16 The Struggle for Identity in Today's Schools examines cultural recognition and the struggle for identity in America's schools. In particular, the contributing authors focus on the recognition and misrecognition as antagonistic cultural forces that work to shape and at times distort identity. What surfaces throughout the chapters are two lessons to be learned in relation to identity. The first lesson is that identities and the acts attributed to them are always forming and re-forming in relation to historically specific contexts and these contexts are political in nature, i.e., defined by issues of diversity such as race, ethnicity, language, sexual orientation, gender, and economics. The second lesson presented by the authors is that identity forms in and across intimate and social contexts over long periods of time. The historical timing of identity formation cannot simply be dictated by discourse. The identities posited by any particular discourse become important and a part of everyday life based on the intersection of social histories and social actors. Importantly, the social/cultural use of identities leads to another way of conceptualizing histories, personhoods, cultures, and their distributions over social and political groups.

Antiracist Education Julie Kailin, 2002-03-11 This book combines theory, practice, and ethnography in an exploration of how teachers can fully implement diversity and antiracism as a foundation of their teaching approach. The author, a white mother of children of color whose work is influenced by her own experience being raised in an antiracist activist family, developed her curriculum over many years of active involvement with parents and teachers in schools. She presents her curriculum along with ethnographic reports of the processes of change that teachers experience as they fully explore the realities of race relations, its history, and the lived experiences of others. Kailin shows how immersion in this exploration enables teachers to develop curricula and teaching practices that are effectively antiracist and fully connected to students' lives.

The Social Studies Curriculum E. Wayne Ross, 2001-04-12 The newly revised edition of The Social Studies Curriculum presents the definitive overview of the primary issues facing teachers creating learning experiences for students in social studies. The book connects the diverse elements of the social studies curriculum: global education, social issues, centered education, and the roles of history and the arts and sciences, thereby offering a unique and contemporary perspective, one that separates it from other texts used in today's social studies classrooms. Thoroughly updated, this edition includes new material on the use of literature in social studies classrooms, inclusive education, citizenship education, and the impact of standards and high-stakes testing on social studies curriculum and pedagogy.

Doing History Linda S. Levstik, Keith C. Barton, 2011-01-26 Now in its fourth edition, this popular text offers a unique perspective on teaching and learning history in the elementary and middle grades. Through case studies of teachers and students in diverse classrooms and from diverse backgrounds, it shows children engaging in authentic historical investigations often in the context of an integrated social studies curriculum. The central assumption is that children can engage in valid forms of historical inquiry: collecting and data analysis, examining the perspectives of people in the past, considering multiple interpretations, and creating evidence-based historical accounts. In each chapter, the authors explain how the teaching demonstrated in the vignettes reflects basic principles of contemporary learning theory thus providing specific examples of successful activities and placing them in a theoretical context that allows teachers to adapt and apply them in a wide variety of settings New in the Fourth Edition Expanded coverage of world history in two new chapters Integration of new technologies to support history instruction Updated classroom examples bibliographies and references

In a Classroom of Their Own Keisha Lindsay, 2018-07-02 Many advocates of all black male schools ABMSs argue that these institutions counter black boys racist emasculation in white overly female classrooms This argument challenges racism and perpetuates antifeminism Keisha Lindsay explains the complex politics of ABMSs by situating these schools within broader efforts at neoliberal education reform and within specific conversations about both endangered black males and a boy crisis in education Lindsay also demonstrates that intersectionality long considered feminist is in fact a politically fluid framework As such it represents a potent tool for advancing many political agendas including those of ABMSs supporters who champion antiracist education for black boys while obscuring black girls own race and gender based oppression in school Finally Lindsay theorizes a particular means by which black men and other groups can form antiracist and feminist coalitions even when they make claims about their experiences that threaten bridge building The way forward Lindsay shows allows disadvantaged groups to navigate the racial and gendered politics that divide them in pursuit of productive and progressive solutions Far thinking and boldly argued In a Classroom of Their Own explores the dilemmas faced by professionals and parents in search of equitable schooling for all students black boys and otherwise

Feeling Power Megan Boler, 2004-11-23 First published in 1999 Megan Boler combines cultural history with ethical and multicultural analyses to explore how emotions have been disciplined suppressed or ignored at all levels of education and in educational theory FEELING POWER charts the philosophies and practices developed over the last century to control social conflicts arising from gender class and race The book traces the development of progressive pedagogies from civil rights and feminist movements to Boler's own recent studies of emotional intelligence and emotional literacy Drawing on the formulation of emotion as knowledge within feminist psychobiological and post structuralist theories Boler develops a unique theory of emotion missing from contemporary educational discourses

Global Variation in Literacy Development Ludo Verhoeven, Sonali Nag, Charles Perfetti, Kenneth Pugh, 2023-12-07

Bringing together an international team of scholars this pioneering book presents the first truly systematic cross linguistic study of variation in literacy development It draws on a wide range of cross cultural research to shed light on the key factors that predict global variation in children's acquisition of reading and writing skills covering regions as diverse as North and South America Asia Australia Europe and Africa The first part of the volume deals with comprehensive reviews related to the variation of literacy in different regions of the globe as a function of socio political sociocultural and language and writing system factors The second part of the volume deals with comprehensive reviews related to the variation of literacy in different world regions Offering a pioneering new framework for global literacy development this groundbreaking volume will remain a landmark in the fields of literacy development and literacy teaching and learning for years to come Making Workers Katharyne Mitchell, 2017-12-20 As globalisation transforms the organisation of society so too is its impact felt in the classroom Katharyne Mitchell argues that schools are spaces in which neoliberal practices are brought to bear on the lives of children Education's narratives actors and institutions play a pivotal role in the social and political formation of youth as workers in a capitalist economy Mitchell looks at the formation of student identity and allegiance as well as spaces of resistance She investigates the transition to educational narratives emphasising flexibility and strategic global entrepreneurialism and examines the role of education in a broader political project of producing new generations of economically insecure but compliant workers Scrutinising the impact of an influx of new actors practices and policies Mitchell argues that public education is the latest institution to embrace the neoliberal logic of choice pertaining to schools faculty and curricula that if unchallenged will lead to further incursions of the market and increased socioeconomic inequality
