Freshwater and Estuarine Radioecology G. Desmet, 1997 Hardbound The Chernobyl accident drew attention to the difficulties of understanding the dynamics of radionuclide transport through the environment using older methods developed after the pseudo steady state pollution resulting after the weapons testing fallout More recent approaches which are reported in this book have incorporated both the dynamic aspects highlighted by the pulse Chernobyl input and the importance of improvement in models that can be brought about by constraining parameters on the basis of a knowledge of the fundamental physics chemistry biology and ecology of the ecosystems involved The papers within this volume include hydrodynamic models of suspended solids transport ion exchange interpretation of radionuclide sorption approaches applying a knowledge of membrane transport kinetics to the uptake of radionuclides by biota the effects of different ecological niches on the relative uptake of radionuclides by different species

Fish Physiology: Homeostasis and Toxicology of Essential Metals, 2011-06-28 Homeostasis and Toxicology of Essential Metals synthesizes the explosion of new information on the molecular cellular and organismal handling of metals in fish in the past 15 years These elements are no longer viewed by fish physiologists as heavy metals that kill fish by suffocation but rather as interesting moieties that enter and leave fish by specific pathways which are subject to physiological regulation The metals featured in this volume are those about which there has been most public and scientific concern and therefore are those most widely studied by fish researchers Metals such as Cu Zn Fe Ni Co Se Mo and Cr are either proven to be or are strongly suspected to be essential in trace amounts yet are toxic in higher doses The companion volume Homeostasis and Toxicology of Non Essential Metals Volume 31B covers metals that have no known nutritive function in fish at present but which are toxic at fairly low levels such as Ag Al Cd Pb Hg As Sr and U In addition three chapters in Volumes 31A and 31B on Basic Principles Chapter 1 31A Field Studies and Ecological Integration Chapter 9 31A and Modeling the Physiology and Toxicology of Metals Chapter 9 31B act as integrative summaries and make these two volumes a vital set for readers All major essential metals of interest are covered in metal specific chapters Each metal specific chapter is written by fish physiologists toxicologists who are recognized authorities for that metal A common format is featured throughout this two volume edition

Marine Radioecology, Volume 6 Jean-Claude Amiard, 2023-01-12 The marine environment in addition to a not insignificant background of natural radioactivity has continued to receive inputs of radionuclides directly or indirectly through atomic fallout discharges from the nuclear industry or from nuclear accidents After their introduction the fate of these radionuclides is complex with modifications of physicochemical forms dispersion in marine water masses and adsorption onto sedimentary particles Marine organisms then bioaccumulate these radionuclides to a greater or lesser extent dispersing them via their burrowing activities horizontal and vertical migrations or through food webs All of these phenomena lead to very variable radioactive contamination depending on location and the nature of the marine environments concerned and consequently to very different doses of irradiation to marine organisms The harmful effects of ionizing radiation on living marine organisms are felt at varying levels of biological organization from the molecule to the ecosystem passing through the cell the organ the individual and the population In the end the radioactive risk for marine organisms can decline according to several situations which can be normal programmed or accidental Radioecology of Aquatic Organisms Gennadii Grigor'evich Polikarpov, 1966 Systematized account and substantiation of concepts and problems of the laws of interrelation between marine organisms radio active substances Marine Radioecology : the Cycling of Artificial Radionuclides Through Marine Food Chains SEMINAR ON MARINE RADIOECOLOGY, 1972
