Dialectical Materialism: A Note on the Philosophical School Pons

Malleus, 2025-08-21 This book is an inquiry into one of the most influential and controversial schools of philosophy in modern history Dialectical Materialism Rooted in the intellectual traditions of Hegelian dialectics and Marxist materialism dialectical materialism represents not merely a philosophical method but a worldview one that seeks to understand and change the world through the lens of contradiction motion and material conditions Dialectical materialism emerged in the 19th century shaped most decisively by Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels who reconfigured Hegel's idealist dialectic into a materialist framework They argued that ideas do not drive history independently of the material world rather human consciousness is shaped by the social and economic structures within which it develops From this standpoint thought is not abstracted from life but is inseparable from the lived concrete reality of human labor production and social relations The dialectical method as developed by Hegel emphasized that reality is not static but dynamic composed of contradictions whose tensions and resolutions drive development Marx and Engels preserved this kernel but inverted its idealist foundation In doing so they established a materialist dialectic a method of understanding historical and natural phenomena as processes interconnected constantly changing and shaped by internal contradictions For dialectical materialism change is not accidental but necessary it arises from the conflicts inherent within systems Whether in the natural world in society or in the realm of thought contradictions are not anomalies but the very engine of transformation Thus history is not a random series of events nor a steady progress guided by divine or moral teleology but a process driven by the struggle between opposing forces class against class old against new base against superstructure Yet dialectical materialism is not only a theory of how things change It is also a theory of praxis of informed purposeful action in the world It offers not just a way to interpret the world but as Marx famously insisted a way to change it It serves as the philosophical foundation for Marxist political theory revolutionary strategy and critical analysis of capitalism imperialism and ideology Throughout the 20th century dialectical materialism became the official philosophical doctrine of many socialist states Its institutionalization led to both developments and distortions At times rigidly dogmatized at other times creatively applied dialectical materialism was variously embraced critiqued and reformulated by thinkers across the globe from Lenin Mao and Lukács to contemporary philosophers still wrestling with its implications in the wake of global capitalism's evolution This book seeks to do justice to the complexity and richness of dialectical materialism its origins its development its power and its limitations It is neither a hagiography nor a polemic Instead it is a philosophical exploration of a method that refuses to accept the world as it is and insists instead on uncovering how and why it came to be and what it might yet become In an era marked by ecological collapse growing inequality and crises of meaning the questions posed by dialectical materialism remain urgently relevant What drives social change What are the roots of suffering and exploitation And how can we act consciously and collectively to reshape our world These pages are offered in the spirit of critical engagement May they serve both those newly encountering dialectical materialism and those already steeped in its tradition Above all may they stimulate thought and action

From Marx to Lenin David W. Lovell, 1984-07-19 This study is a contribution to the debate begun just after the October Revolution concerning the relationship between Marx's project and Soviet society It focuses however only on the political aspects of the matter to what extent was early Soviet authoritarianism the necessary outcome of Marx's works Since Lenin's practice and theory largely determined and justified the early political character of the Soviet state we may ask whether Lenin was implementing Marx's project or a project of his own design Lenin influenced by debates within Social Democracy and by the experience of the Russian revolutionary tradition used a one sided interpretation of Marx's work to build and defend a transition which was fundamentally authoritarian Marx was not causally responsible for the theoretical foundation of Soviet authoritarianism

Ibn Khaldun and the Social Sciences Javad Tabatabai, 2024-10-16 Arabic and European studies of Ibn Khaldun the great medieval polymath follow one of two paths In one direction scholars interpret his Prolegomena written in 1377 as the point at which the new social sciences emerged They identify Ibn Khaldun's new science of culture as sociology or as an Islamic or Arab alternative to sociology In the other direction the interpretation of Khaldunian discourse is confined to the Islamic Aristotelian paradigm of its time The epistemological novelty of the Prolegomena is dismissed and the science of culture is perceived as a minor contribution to the Aristotelian curriculum Charting a different path Javad Tabatabai's highly original Ibn Khaldun and the Social Sciences is an inquiry into the condition of the impossibility of the social sciences in the Islamic Aristotelian paradigm Rather than identifying the science of culture as a forerunner of or alternative to sociology it investigates the Prolegomena within the epistemological framework established by the social sciences Javad Tabatabai theorizes the condition of impossibility of the scientific revolution as the epistemic obstacle to modernity in Islamic civilization This theorization revisits Michel Foucault's discussion of the condition of possibility of the human sciences in light of the history of Christian Aristotelian thought and the broader French debates about epistemology from Bachelard to Althusser Ibn Khaldun and the Social Science offers a critical theory of tradition and modernity in the Middle East elaborating on a historical situation where social and human sciences emerged by the way of colonial and post colonial translations of discourse from Europe and in a historical and epistemological break with inherited traditions of knowledge In this situation Tabatabai highlights the significance of reactivating Ibn Khaldun's critical reckoning with the limit of inherited traditions as the political theological horizon of renewal
