Eden Other Reservations:

Murder on the Reservation Ray B. Browne, 2004-06-30 In Murder on the Reservation Ray B Browne surveys the work of several of the best known writers of crime fiction involving Indian characters and references virtually every book that qualifies as an Indian related mystery Browne believes that within the genre of crime fiction all people are equal and the increasing role of Indian characters in criminal fiction proves what an important role this genre plays as a powerful democratizing force in American society He endeavors to both analyze and evaluate the individual work of the authors and at the same time provide a commentary on the various attitudes towards race relations in the United States that each author presents Some Indian fiction is intended to right the wrongs the authors feel have been leveled against Indians Other authors use Indian lore and Indian locales as exotic elements and locations for the entertaining and commercially successful stories they want to write Browne s analysis includes authors and works of all backgrounds with mysteries of first class murder both on and off the reservation

Subcommittee on Economic Development,1977 Forging the Collective Memory Keith Wilson,1996 When studying the origins of the First World War scholars have relied heavily on the series of key diplomatic documents published by the governments of both the defeated and the victorious powers in the 1920s and 1930s However this volume shows that these volumes rather than dealing objectively with the past were used by the different governments to project an interpretation of the origins of the Great War that was more palatable to them and their country than the truth might have been In revealing policies that influenced the publication of the documents the relationships between the commissioning governments their officials and the historians involved this collection serves as a warning that even seemingly objective sources have to be used with caution in historical research Congressional Record ,1879 Special List - National Archives and Records Service United States.
