examines the main issues and challenges that science journalism faces in the MENA region while analyzing how journalists in these countries cover science and engage with scientists Most countries in the Middle East and North Africa region have set an ambitious goal for 2030 to transform their societies and become knowledge economies This means modernizing institutions and encouraging people to embrace Science Technology Engineering and Mathematics as part of their daily lives This books claims that the main vehicle to achieve this goal is science news reporting as it continues to be the main platform to disseminate scientific knowledge to the general public Simultaneously it is also poorly equipped to achieve this task Interviewing dozens of journalists the authors looked at specific areas such as the gender divide and its effects on science news reporting as well as the role of religion and culture in shaping journalism as a political institution The authors conclude that traditional normative assumptions as to why science reporting does not live up to expectations need to be reviewed in light of other more structural problems such as lack of skills and specialization in science communication in the region In so doing the book sets out to understand the past present and future of science news in one of the most challenging regions in the world for journalists Space Science and the Arab World Jörg Matthias Determann,2018-01-29 When Sultan bin

Salman left Earth on the shuttle Discovery in 1985 he became the first Arab first Muslim and first member of a royal family in space Twenty five years later the discovery of a planet 500 light years away by the Qatar Exoplanet Survey subsequently named Qatar 1b was evidence of the cutting edge space science projects taking place across the Middle East This book identifies the individuals institutions and national ideologies that enabled Arab astronomers and researchers to gain support for space exploration when Middle East governments lacked interest Jorg Matthias Determann shows that the conquest of space became associated with national prestige security economic growth and the idea of an Arab renaissance more generally Equally important to this success were international collaborations to benefit from American and Soviet expertise and technology Arab scientists and officials had to commit to global governance of space and the common interests of humanity Challenging the view that the golden age of Arabic science and cosmopolitanism was situated in the medieval period Determann tells the story of the new discoveries and scientific collaborations taking place from the 19th century to the present day An innovative contribution to Middle East studies and history of science the book also appeals to increased business media and political interest in the Arab space industry
