Edutrends 2010 David D. Thornburg,1992 Rethinking Education in the Age of Technology Allan Collins,Richard Halverson,2018 The digital revolution in education is well under way with more and more learners plugged into the online world How can schools make the most of both the technology and the learning potential of today s born digital students In this new edition of their groundbreaking book Collins and Halverson argue that new technologies have transformed our workplaces our lives and our culture and it is time we take the next step to transform learning in and out of schools The authors show how over time public schooling was so successful that it became synonymous with education But new technologies risk making schools obsolete and this book explains why and how today s educators policymakers and communities must adapt to provide all learners with access to the new learning tools of the 21st century Allan Collins and Richard Halverson are not by any means arguing that teachers or schools should go away Rather they are saying that they should open their doors and windows connect to other real and virtual places be crucial tour guides and send their children on flights of fancy through our modern memory palaces From the Foreword by James Paul Gee Arizona State University The most convincing account I ve read about how education will change in the decades ahead the authors analyses are impressive fair minded and useful Howard Gardner Harvard Graduate School of Education from first edition The Educational Technology Profession J. Fred Olive,1995 The Challenges to Library Learning Bruce E. Massis,2008-11 The Challenges to Library Learning Solutions for Librarians offers practical strategies for librarians dealing with challenges including depleted training budgets overworked staff and rapidly changing technology that hinder the ability and willingness of employees to continue job education in library sciences Best Practices for Technology-Enhanced Teaching and Learning Dana S. Dunn,Janie H. Wilson,James Freeman,Jeffrey R. Stowell,2011-02-02 The use of technology and teaching techniques derived from technology is currently a burgeoning topic in higher education Teachers at all levels and types of institutions want to know how these new technologies will affect what happens in and outside of the classroom Many teachers have already embraced some of these technologies but remain uncertain about their educational efficacy Other teachers have waited because they are reluctant to try tools or techniques that remain unproven or as is often the case lack institutional support This book is designed to help both groups so that those with technological expertise can extend their knowledge while technological novices can ramp up at their own pace and for their own purposes Best Practices for Technology Enhanced Teaching and Learning brings together expert teacher scholars who apply and assess technology s impact on traditional hybrid or blended or completely on line courses relying on technology as a teaching tool for classroom management and interaction e g Blackboard PowerPoint student response or clicker systems multimedia tools as well as student based uses of technology largely independent of instructors e g social networking on popular sites including Facebook and MySpace Each chapter will address how technological improvements can be connected to assessment initiatives as is now routinely advocated in psychology and social science education The book features current scholarship and pedagogy involving innovative technology that impacts on student learning in psychology and related disciplines focusing also on student reactions to these novel technologies and proper assessments of how well they promote learning This text will serve as the standard reference on emerging technologies for undergraduate instructors
