Measuring Caring John Nelson,Jean Watson,2011-08-24 Jean

Watson's Theory of Human Caring Caritas is now used in approximately 300 health care institutions in the United States and other institutions worldwide. This is the first international compendium of Caritas research presenting the findings of 41 studies from 7 countries. The book examines similarities and differences in the ways in which each country applies Watson's Theory and documents the outcomes of these interventions. It addresses relationships between nurses and patients, nurses and their colleagues, self-care, and how Caritas is used to resolve outcome issues system-wide. The book discusses at length eight different Caring Factor surveys, primary research tools for those using the Caritas process which identify constructs that either support or impede caring in multiple settings. The first section focuses on the theoretical underpinnings of Caritas and presents seven adaptations of the Caring Factor Survey. Section II addresses measurements and methods for facilitating a caring relationship between nurse and patient. Measurements and interventions to facilitate Caritas in a variety of settings is the focus of Section III, and the final sections address the international measurement and international comparisons of Caritas. The volume will be an important resource for nurse leaders, educators, administrators in academia, including unit managers, and for hospitals with or seeking Magnet status. The book serves as a complement to Watson's Assessing and Measuring Caring in Nursing and Health Care and Creating a Caring Science Curriculum: An Emancipatory Pedagogy for Nursing. A co-publication with the Watson Caring Institute, this volume presents cutting-edge tools derived from the Caring Factor Survey for measuring caring in multiple contexts. Discusses similarities and differences in caring contexts across nations. Documents outcomes of Caritas in varied settings in the United States and internationally. Addresses nurse-patient and nurse-colleague relationships, self-care, and resolution of system-wide outcome issues. Reflective Practice in Nursing

Lioba Howatson-Jones, 2013-03-21. Reflection enables us to make sense of and learn from experiences that can sometimes seem uncertain, chaotic, or even mundane. The second edition of this popular book introduces student nurses to reflection in a clear and practical manner. It explains what reflection is, why it is so important to nursing practice, and the different types of reflection that can be used to help make sense of practice. The new edition includes a new chapter on using digital media in reflection, new case studies from each field of practice, and new activities. Building the Reflective Healthcare Organisation

Tony Ghaye, 2008-04-15. Healthcare organisations have to manage change in order to evolve and improve care. This book explores the use of reflective practice as a practical tool to examine growth and change and to develop an effective health care organisation. Creative Approaches to Health and Social Care Education

Tony Warne, Sue McAndrew, 2009-12-07. This is a Bloomsbury Academic title. For our full Academic Catalogue, please visit <https://www.bloomsbury.com/uk/academic>. Childbirth, Midwifery and Concepts of Time

Christine McCourt, 2009. All cultures are concerned with the business of childbirth so much so that it can never be described as a purely physiological or even psychological event. This volume draws together work from a range of anthropologists and midwives who have found anthropological approaches useful in their work. Using case studies from a variety of cultural settings, the writers explore the centrality of the way time is conceptualized marked and measured to the ways of perceiving and managing childbirth how women midwives and other birth attendants are affected by issues of power and control but also actively attempt to change established forms of thinking and practice The stories are engaging as well as critical and invite the reader to think afresh about time and about reproduction
