Gun Control in Germany, 1928-1945

by William L. Pierce

A common belief among defenders of the Second Amendment to the U.S. Constitution is that the National Socialist government of Germany under Adolf Hitler did not permit the private ownership of firearms. Totalitarian governments, they have been taught in their high school civics classes, do not trust their citizens and do not dare permit them to keep firearms. Thus, one often hears the statement, "You know, the first thing the Nazis did when they came to power was outlaw firearms," or, "The first thing Hitler did in Germany was round up all the guns."

One can understand why many American gun owners want to believe this. They see in the current effort of their own government to take away their right to keep and bear arms a limitation of an essential element of their freedom and a move toward tyranny, and they want to characterize the gun-grabbers in the most negative way they can. Adolf Hitler has been vilified continuously for the past 60 years or so by the mass media in America, and certainly no politician or officeholder wants to be compared with him. If the gun-confiscation effort can be portrayed convincingly as something of which Hitler would have approved, it will have been effectively tarred.

This identification of the inclination to deny citizens the right to keep and bear arms with National Socialism and Adolf Hitler has been strengthened recently by clever magazine advertisements which show Hitler with his arm outstretched in a Roman salute under a heading: "All in favor of gun control raise your right hand." A Jewish group, Jews for the Preservation of Firearms Ownership (JPFO), quite noisy for its size, has been especially zealous in promoting the idea that the current gun-control effort in America has its roots in Germany during the Hitler period. This group has gone so far as to claim in several articles published in popular magazines read by firearms enthusiasts

Upside Down Dan Meyer,2016-03-28 We the People have had it pretty good since WWII Our prosperity has resulted in our collective apathy toward the corrupt progression of what once were servants of the People into life long career politicians in Washington D C who have become our elite political ruling class Power corrupts and absolute power corrupts absolutely Today in our United States we have an all powerful central government enabled by a subservient media propelling our nation toward the living hell described in George Orwell s 1984 where truth cannot be found where freedom does not exist Upside Down clearly defines the immediate action We the People can and must take to restore what used to be our government of by and for the people If we choose to continue to sit on the sidelines and not get involved we will transition from apathy to dependence and out of that dependence will come the bondage from which we rose 239 years ago
