Education In The Middle East:

Aspects of Education in the Middle East and Africa Colin Brock, Lila Zia Levers, 2007-05-07 The chapters in this volume do not represent the whole of the Middle East and North Africa as such a collection would have been too large for one volume. Rather the selection here is intended to present different perspectives on a range of educational issues relevant to a particular focus or country or common to a number of countries in the area. There is no overarching theme beyond that which is common to most of the countries in this area such as modernity versus tradition, the spread of education effecting sociological changes most pronounced in the rural and tribal areas, the changing fortunes and roles of women, the aspiration and expectation of youth and the state having become the major player in providing education. These are all shared by most of the countries represented here. Going to School in the Middle East and North Africa Kwabena D.

Adopting a South-South perspective from the viewpoint of a developing country, it seeks to promote a deeper understanding of this colourful and highly diverse yet volatile region. As such, it examines six selected MENA countries that serve as case studies for identifying the gaps and challenges as well as their potentials in terms of higher education development. Based on expert interviews and focus group discussions with more than 85 individuals across the six countries and complemented by related facts and figures from both international and national documents, it presents an in-depth discussion and analysis of the countries' respective political, security and economic situations. These serve as preconditions for the cultivation of an environment conducive to facilitating the advancement of higher education. It also provides a critical overview of higher education in these countries, notably in terms of the current national system, legislative framework, accreditation, quality assurance, recognition concerns and other critical issues that enable and/or constrain the development of their respective higher education sectors and that of the region as a whole. At the Crossroads Adnan

Education which has been at the heart of the Middle East and North Africa MENA region s history and civilizations for centuries has a large untapped potential to contribute to human capital well being and wealth The region has invested heavily in education for decades but it has not been able to reap the benefits of its investments Despite a series of reforms MENA has remained stuck in a low learning low skills level Expectations and Aspirations A New Framework for Education in the Middle East and North Africa identifies four key sets of tensions that are holding back education in the region credentials and skills discipline and inquiry control and autonomy and tradition and modernity These tensions are shaped by society and are reflected in classrooms If they are not addressed MENA will continue to operate at a level below its potential This report outlines a new framework with a three pronged approach that can help address these tensions and unleash the potential of education in MENA A concerted push for learning that starts early for all children regardless of background with qualified and motivated educators and that leverages technology uses modern approaches and monitors learning outcomes A stronger pull for skills by all stakeholders in the labor market and society that involves coordinated multisystem reforms within and beyond the education system A new pact for education at the national level with a unified vision shared responsibilities and accountabilities Education is not just the responsibility of the education system it is everyone s business The push pull and pact framework offers an opportunity for MENA to move forward to reclaim its heritage of a learned region and to meet the expectations and aspirations of its people The current situation in MENA requires a renewed focus on education not just as a national priority for economic growth and social development but as a national emergency for stability peace and prosperity

Education and Society in the Middle East and North Africa Milton George, S. Sergio Saleem Scatolini, 2020-01-17 In the past the Middle East and the so called Muslim world used to be beacons of learning and critical thought Although historical variables such as conquest internal conflict and colonization demoted their position on the global stage changes are now in the offing In these interesting times a growing number of educators thinkers and visionaries are trying both to find and to generate new approaches to the past present and future of the region This book is a collection of articles which reflect on various aspects related to education and society in the Middle East and North Africa also known as the MENA region their peoples and educational processes It provides a platform for people to join the global conversation and to contribute to it with data which are relevant to regional concerns research and practices This is necessary because many of the theories and research findings which are still being used to understand the region were generated elsewhere and despite their lack of regional representativeness were generalized as the most trustworthy interpretive tools across the world Hence there is a need for the world to open up to the voices from the MENA region

Education in the Broader Middle East Gari Donn, Yahya Al Manthri, 2013-05-13 This book brings together academics and postgraduate students practitioners and Ministry officials all of whom are wedded to developing an understanding of what is happening to education in the broader Middle East They cover many countries whilst recognising that many more could have been included In drawing attention to education in Pakistan Palestine Oman Turkey and Qatar they indicate the wide range of education policy borrowing and most importantly the effects of this exchange The contributors know that the countries of the broader Middle East are not alone in having purchased glitzy glossy and tantalisingly wonderful educational reforms only to find how quickly they became outdated In other words they became a baroque arsenal of educational goods services and models of practice which having been discussed designed and generated many years before in countries elsewhere have then been sold and delivered to the unsuspecting countries of the broader Middle East It is argued that many of the countries of the region did not suspect that their purchases were more frequently than not the off loading of failed educational experiments in countries of the centre This book discusses what this means not only for educational reform projects but also for the impact upon regional political stability The two final chapters discuss the underlying key concerns of gender and of cross border education

Youth and Education in the Middle East Daniele Cantini, 2016 The uprisings that were seen throughout the Middle East during 2010 and 2011 make it difficult to over state the role of educated youth in the region s politics Daniele Cantini combines an analysis of young people in Jordan of its relevance and of its perceived crisis with one which looks at education and the pursuit of knowledge He thereby highlights the unprecedented rise in youth population and the growth in institutions of higher learning as a way to explore and explain the challenges Arab majority societies are currently facing It proposes an understanding of the university as an institution integral to the survival of the regime discusses its fragile reforms and crucial in the formation of young people s social and political identities Youth and Education in the Middle East offers vital first hand accounts of the role of educational institutions and the impact they have in shaping transnational and local constituencies as well as in the micropolitics of everyday life Bloomsbury Publishing

Education Technology Policies in the Middle East Michael Lightfoot, 2016-09-14 This book explores the potential educational technologies have for transforming education in the Middle East Although technology has increasingly become a part of classrooms around the globe over recent decades its application in classrooms in the MENA region remains underused and this book draws on a case study from the Arabian Gulf to examine the beneficial impact technologies have on teaching and learning The book identifies the many social and cultural pressures that prevent government technology policies to be implemented in the way that the international community would find recognisable and acceptable and how education policy from the Global North is transplanted into a separate context without considering the different requirements The study seeks to address the ways in which educational technology policy in government schools plays a part in the enactment of education reforms and how government policy aspirations are played out in practice

Teachers as State-Builders Hilary Falb Kalisman, 2022-09-20 The little known history of public school teachers across the Arab world and how they wielded an unlikely influence over the modern Middle East Today it is hard to imagine a time and place when public school teachers were considered among the elite strata of society But in the lands controlled by the Ottomans and then by the British in the early and mid twentieth century teachers were key players in government and leading formulators of ideologies Drawing on archival research and oral histories Teachers as State Builders brings to light educators outsized role in shaping the politics of the modern Middle East Hilary Falb Kalisman tells the story of the few young Arab men and fewer young Arab women who were lucky enough to teach public school in the territories that became Iraq Jordan and Palestine Israel Crossing Ottoman provincial and later Mandate and national borders for work and study these educators were advantageously positioned to assume mid and even high level administrative positions in multiple government bureaucracies All told over one third of the prime ministers who served in Iraq from the 1950s through the 1960s and in Jordan from the 1940s through the early 1970s were former public school teachers a trend that changed only when independence occupation and mass education degraded the status of teaching The first history of education across Britain s Middle Eastern Mandates this transnational study reframes our understanding of the profession of teaching the connections between public education and nationalism and the fluid politics of the interwar Middle East
