Education Through Work:

Education Through Work Célestin Freinet, 1993 Schooling in the Workplace Nancy Hoffman, 2011 Which non American education systems best prepare young people for fulfilling jobs and successful adult lives And what can the United States where far too many young people currently enter adulthood without adequate preparation for the twenty first century job market learn adopt and adapt from these other systems In Schooling in the Workplace Nancy Hoffman addresses these questions head on arguing that the smartest and quickest route to a wide variety of occupations for the majority of young people in the successful countries not a default for failing students is a vocational program that integrates work and learning Schooling in the Workplace explores the vocational education programs in a wide range of countries focusing in rich and useful detail on six in particular Australia Austria Germany the Netherlands Norway and Switzerland Framing these discussions however is a persistent focus on American circumstances and challenges Far more than a survey of six foreign programs this is a book prompted by and organized around the policy and practical challenges facing the United States Nancy Hoffman offers a clear eyed analysis of the American youth development problem and what we can learn from our European competitors their successes and their failures She suggests workable solutions in moving from a completion agenda to a learning for jobs agenda This is a necessary read for those who are serious about addressing the real education needs of American youth in their transition to a productive adulthood James R Stone III professor and director National Research Center for Career Technical Education University of Louisville Schooling in the Workplace sheds new light on the urgency and effectiveness of integrating academic work and career preparation to help more young people succeed in the workforce It is the right approach now is the right time and as we are experiencing in California it is achievable Anne Stanton Program Director for Youth The James Irvine Foundation Nancy Hoffman takes us on a tour of countries that do an impressive job preparing their youth for careers through programs that situate learning in the workplace As a country struggling with persistent high school dropout rates achievement gaps and the lowest youth employment rate in six decades the United States should closely examine the policies of those countries that the author highlights they point clearly to how we can do a better job preparing youth particularly disadvantaged youth for the world of work in our complex society Betsy Brand executive director American Youth Policy Forum Nancy Hoffman is a vice president and senior advisor at Jobs for the Future Stanley S Litow is Vice President of Corporate Citizenship and Corporate Affairs at IBM and president of IBM's International Foundation Social Work Education Through Open And Distance Learning Bishnu Mohan Dash,

Achieving Equity and Justice in Education through the Work of Systems Change Jennifer Neitzel, 2020-01-17 In Achieving Equity and Justice in Education through the Work of Systems Change Dr Neitzel contends that our nation is at a crossroads Do we continue with the band aid approach to equity that is focused on implementing isolated intervention programs aimed at reducing the achievement gap Or do we embrace systems change which requires us to focus on disrupting the roots that are sustaining deep disparities between Black and White students She guides readers through the history of the educational system to facilitate a greater understanding about how barriers have morphed to disadvantage Black students and why systems change is necessary to address racial inequities within our schools She lays out a systems change framework that provides the path forward for educational leaders teachers policy makers and community members The Work identifies key issues that must be addressed and offers a revolutionary new way of thinking about how to bring about lasting change for all students

Learning to Work W. Norton Grubb, 1996-05-30 Grubb's powerful vision of a workforce development system connected by vertical ladders for upward mobility adds an important new dimension to our continued efforts at system reform The unfortunate reality is that neither our first chance education system nor our second chance job training system have succeeded in creating clear pathways out of poverty for many of our citizens Grubb's message deserves a serious hearing by policy makers and practitioners alike Evelyn Ganzglass National Governors Association

Over the past three decades job training programs have proliferated in response to mounting problems of unemployment poverty and expanding welfare rolls These programs and the institutions that administer them have grown to a number and complexity that make it increasingly difficult for policymakers to interpret their effectiveness Learning to Work offers a comprehensive assessment of efforts to move individuals into the workforce and explains why their success has been limited Learning to Work offers a complete history of job training in the United States beginning with the Department of Labor's manpower development programs in the 1960s and detailing the expansion of services through the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act in the 1970s and the Job Training Partnership Act in the 1980s Other programs have sprung from the welfare system or were designed to meet the needs of various state and corporate development initiatives The result is a complex mosaic of welfare to work second chance training and experimental programs all with their own goals methodology institutional administration and funding Learning to Work examines the findings of the most recent and sophisticated job training evaluations and what they reveal for each type of program Which agendas prove most effective Do their effects last over time How well do programs benefit various populations from welfare recipients to youths to displaced employees in need of retraining The results are not encouraging Many programs increase employment and reduce welfare dependence but by meager increments and the results are often temporary On average most programs boosted earnings by only 200 to 500 per year and even these small effects tended to decay after four or five years Overall job training programs moved very few individuals permanently off welfare and provided no entry into a middle class occupation or income Learning to Work provides possible explanations for these poor results citing the limited scope of individual programs their lack of linkages to other programs or job related opportunities the absence of academic content or solid instructional methods and their vulnerability to local political interference Author Norton Grubb traces the root of these problems to the inherent separation of job training programs from the more successful educational system He proposes consolidating the two domains

into a clearly defined hierarchy of programs that combine school and work based instruction and employ proven methods of student centered project based teaching By linking programs tailored to every level of need and replacing short term job training with long term education a system could be created to enable individuals to achieve increasing levels of economic success The problems that job training programs address are too serious too ignore Learning to Work tells us what s wrong with job training today and offers a practical vision for reform

Understanding the Boundary between Disability Studies and Special Education through Consilience, Self-Study, and Radical Love David I. Hernández-Saca, Holly Pearson, Catherine Kramarczuk Voulgarides, 2022-12-13 In Understanding the Boundary between Disability Studies and Special Education through Consilience Self Study and Radical Love the authors explore what it means to engage in boundary work at the intersection of traditional special education systems and critical disability studies in education The book consists of fifteen groundbreaking accounts that challenge dominant medicalized discourses about what it means to exist within and around special education systems that create space for new conceptions of what it means to teach lead learn and exist within a conciliatory space driven by radical love and disability justice principles The book pushes readers to consider how their own personal professional and programmatic future transformational actions can be driven by disruption and the desire for freedom from the hegemony of traditional special education and White and Ability supremacy

Envisioning a Critical Race Praxis in K-12 Education Through Counter-Storytelling Tyson E.J. Marsh, Natasha N. Croom, 2016-08-01 While critical race theory is a framework employed by activists and scholars within and outside the confines of education there are limited resources for leadership practitioners that provide insight into critical race theory and the possibilities of implementing a critical race praxis approach to leadership With a continued top down approach to educational policy and practice it is imperative that educational leaders understand how critical race theory and praxis can assist them in utilizing their agency and roles as leaders to identify and challenge institutional and systemic racism and other forms manifestations of oppression Stovall 2004 In the tradition of critical race theory we are charged with the task of operationalizing theory into practice in the struggle for and commitment to social justice Though educational leaders and leadership programs have been all but absent in this process given their influence and power educational leaders need to be engaged in this endeavor The objective of this edited volume is to draw upon critical race counter stories and praxis for the purpose of providing leaders in training and practicing K 12 leaders with tangible narratives that demonstrate how racism and its intersectionality with other forms of oppression manifest within K 12 schooling An additional aim of this book is to provide leaders with a working knowledge of the central tenets of critical race theory and the tools that are required in recognizing how they might be complicit in the reproduction of institutional and systemic racism and other forms of oppression More precisely this edited volume intends to draw upon and center the lived experiences and voices of contributors that have experienced racism in K 12 schooling Through the use of critical race methodology and counter storytelling Sol rzano Yosso 2002 contributors will share and interrogate their experiences while offering current and future educational leaders insight in recognizing how racism functions within institutions and how they can address it The intended goal of this edited volume is to translate critical race theory into practice while emphasizing the need for educational leaders to develop a critical race praxis and anti racist approach to leadership
