

Concerns Among Parents With College-Bound Children

20%

FINANCES

Most parents said finances were a major challenge or concern (e.g., securing financial aid, paying for college, avoiding massive debt).

22%

LIVING INDEPENDENTLY

A large portion of parents expressed concern about their child's transition to independence (e.g., living away from home, taking on adult responsibilities, balancing social life with academic work).

4%

NO CONCERNS

Parents who said they experienced no challenges or concerns about their child's transition to college made up the smallest portion of responses.

9%

OTHER

Nine percent of parents respondents cited more specific challenges or concerns that didn't fit into any of the above categories.

20%

ACADEMIC PERFORMANCE

Several parents expressed concerns about their child's academic performance, including meeting academic requirements for admission and succeeding while in college. This is especially important given that many types of financial aid require recipients to maintain a certain GPA.

15%

DECISION MAKING

Some parents cited the decision-making aspects of the college transition — such as making informed decisions when it comes to choosing the right school, program, or career path — as the most challenging parts of the process.

11%

MOTIVATION

A smaller but sizable number of respondents said that helping their child to stay motivated and set goals was their greatest challenge throughout the college planning process.
