Government, 2018-11-25 For more than four decades the U S Department of Defense DoD has closed or realigned military installations to reduce overhead enhance readiness and modernization and adjust to the realities of changing international relations The resulting impact on surrounding communities is often dramatic Many communities have successfully converted these former installations to civilian uses such as parks and other recreational facilities business centers market rate housing affordable housing and transitional housing for homeless persons Since the late 1980s the base closure process and the role of local communities in planning for their transition to civilian use have evolved significantly The Redevelopment Act was designed to accommodate the impacted communities multiple interests in base reuse and to meet the national priority to assist homeless individuals and families The law exempted BRAC Commission installations from the provisions of Title V of the McKinney Act and substituted a community based process wherein representatives of the homeless and other community groups participate in local reuse planning The Redevelopment Act places responsibility for base reuse planning in the hands of a Local Redevelopment Authority LRA which represents all the local jurisdictions affected by a closing or realigning installation The LRA is responsible for developing a reuse plan that appropriately balances the needs of the various communities for economic redevelopment other development and homeless assistance HUD then reviews the plan to determine its compliance with the statute Guidebook on Military Base Reuse and Homeless Assistance Andrew Cuomo, 1997-08 This guidebook was developed to anticipate and answer potential questions about the Base Redevelopment Act a law designed to accommodate the impacted communities multiple interests in base reuse and to meet the national priority to assist homeless individuals and families It explains the base redevelopment planning process the requirements and guidelines for submission of applications and HUD s review process Included are a listing of military installations with surplus property a state by state directory of HUD contacts information on HUD funding for homeless assistance programs Guidebook on Military Base Reuse and Homeless Assistance, 1996 Military Base Closures David E. Lockwood, 2003 Approximately 13 years ago in December 1988 the first military base closure commission recommended the closing and realignment of 145 US domestic bases and facilities This action was the consequence of the Department of Defense s broad reevaluation of its mission in conjunction with the weakening and ultimate collapse of the Soviet Union There was little need according to the Pentagon to continue to retain the vast Cold War era infrastructure Funds saved from closing down under utilised bases DOD further noted could be used to enhance development of new weapons and improved readiness Three additional rounds followed the 1988 round of infrastructure reductions in 1991 1993 and 1995 Since then no further rounds of base closures and realignments have been authorised by

Congress despite repeated requests from the Department of Defense in recent years for two additional rounds The reasons for congressional resistance are two fold First there is concern over a likely backlash from constituents living in or near military installations Second many Members of Congress remain wary about a repetition of the perceived political intrusion by the Clinton Administration that occurred in regard to the 1995 recommendations to close Kelly and McClellan air force bases This book reveals the tension in the military facilities that may yet again be up for closure Also discussed are the issues members of Congress feel need be answered before conducting a new round of base closures when the national security environment is uncertain
