

AUTHOR'S NOTE

The woodland guides of Nova Scotia are the province's interior what privateers, rumrunners, buried treasure and the Bluenose are to its coast. Their story is an important part of the history which must be preserved.

The passing years have long since claimed the majority of old-time guides. Their woods lore and campfire tales live on forever. Fortunately, however, memories of those times and the recollections of guides, as well as those of the sons and grandsons of guides of earlier times, have been gathered together in this book. I have not intended to present an historical account, yet it serves that purpose in any way, so much the better. It stands as a collection of anecdotes which tell of a time when Nova Scotia was known as a sportsman's paradise.
