Walker Stockard, 1902 Manhood Factories Paula Lupkin, 2010 Between the Civil War and the Great Depression the Young Men's Christian Association built more than a thousand community centers across the United States and in major cities around the world Dubbed manhood factories by Teddy Roosevelt these iconic buildings served as athletic centers and residential facilities for a rapidly growing urban male population In Manhood Factories Paula Lupkin goes behind the reserved Beaux Arts facades of typical YMCA buildings constructed in this period to understand the urban anxieties moral agendas and conceptions of masculinity that guided their design construction and use She shows that YMCA patrons like J P Morgan Cyrus McCormick Jr and John Wanamaker hoped to create Christian clubhouses that would counteract the corrupting influences of the city At first designed by leading American architects including James Renwick Jr and William Le Baron Jenney and then standardized by the YMCA s own building bureau YMCAs combined elements of men s clubs department stores hotels and Sunday schools Every aspect of the building process was informed by this mission Lupkin argues from raising funds selecting the site and the architect determining the exterior style arranging and furnishing interior spaces and representing the buildings in postcards and other printed materials Beginning with the early history of the YMCA and the construction of New York City s landmark Twenty third Street YMCA of 1869 Lupkin follows the efforts of YMCA leaders to shape a modern yet moral public culture and even define class race ethnicity and gender through its buildings Illustrated with many rarely seen photographs maps and drawings Manhood Factories offers a fascinating new perspective on a venerable institution and its place in America s cultural and architectural history Guilford County and the Civil War Carol Moore, 2015-04-27 Guilford County residents felt the brutal impact of the Civil War on both the homefront and the battlefield From the plight of antislavery Quakers to the strength of women the county was awash in political turmoil Intriguing abolitionists fire breathing secessionists peacemakers valiant soldiers and carpetbaggers are some of the figures who contributed to the chaotic time General Joseph E Johnston s parole of the Army of Tennessee at Greensboro as well as the birth of a free black community following the Confederate defeat brought amazing changes Local author and historian Carol Moore traces the romantic days in the lead up to war the horrors of war itself and the decades of aftermath that followed Abolitionism and American Religion John R. McKivigan, 1999 First Published in 2000 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company The Quest for Progress Sydney Nathans, 1983 Few would have guessed in 1870 that within fifty years North Carolina would be the most industrialized state in the South The Quest for Progress recounts that half century of turbulent change and growth It is the fourth volume in The Way We Lived in North Carolina a pioneering series that uses historic places as windows to the past An accelerating pace of life was evident everywhere in North Carolina at the turn of the century from mill villages to mushrooming towns Sky scrapers and suburbs country estates and mountain resorts testified to the state s new wealth But new conflicts marked the era as well Farmers plagued by debt fought back in a Populist movement that carried its cause to the nation Working men and women fought to keep their independence on the factory floor Black North Carolinians despite violence and disenfranchisement built the churches colleges and businesses that prepared the next generation to reclaim its rights By 1920 North Carolina was a state transformed Sites used to illuminate this period include mill villages a tobacco factory depots schoolhouses general stores a fire station a drugstore and the Thomas Wolfe Memorial Each volume in The Way We Lived in North Carolina examines the social history of an era weaving interpretation around dozens of historic sites and the lives of ordinary people who lived and worked nearby The series is based on the premise that the past can be most fully understood through the joint experience of reading history and visiting historic places These volumes will appeal to all who are interested in North Carolina history historic preservation and social history Energy and Water Development Appropriations for Fiscal Year 1982: Nondepartmental witnesses.
