

AM2: Protected-Mode Programming

Duration: 3 hours

Components: Lab exercises and report.

Objectives:

- (a) To examine how protected-mode programming is done on x86 based computer.
- (b) To evaluate the advantages of protected-mode programming compared to real-mode programming in x86 microprocessor.
- (c) To develop protected-mode assembly language programs which utilize the floating-point unit (FPU) on x86 based computer.
- (d) To develop Win32 Console programs based on x86 assembly language.

1. Floating-Point Unit

The Intel 8086 processor was designed to handle only integer arithmetic. This turned out to be a problem for graphics and calculation-intensive software using floating-point calculations. It was possible to emulate floating-point arithmetic purely through software, but the performance penalty was severe. Programs such as AutoCad (by Autodesk) demanded a more powerful way to perform floating-point math. Intel sold a separate floating-point coprocessor chip named the 8087, and upgraded it along with each processor generation. Beginning from Intel 80486, the floating-point hardware was integrated into the processor and known as the floating-point unit (FPU).

1.1 FPU Register Stack

The FPU does not use the general-purpose registers (EAX, EBX, etc.). Instead, it has its own set of registers called a register stack. It loads values from memory into the register stack, performs calculations, and stores stack values into memory. FPU instructions evaluate mathematical expressions in postfix format. The following, for example, is called an infix expression: $(5 * 6) + 4$. The postfix equivalent is

$$5 \ 6 \ * \ 4 \ +$$

The infix expression $(A + B) * C$ requires parenthesis to override the default precedence rules (multiplication before addition). The parenthesis is not required in the equivalent postfix expression:

$$A \ B \ + \ C \ *$$

1.1.1 Expression Stack

A stack holds intermediate values during the evaluation of postfix expressions. Figure 1.1 shows the steps required to evaluate the postfix expression $5 \ 6 \ * \ 4 \ +$. The stack entries are labelled ST(0) and ST(1), with ST(0) indicating where the stack pointer would normally be pointing.
