El Gato De Chihuahua:

El Narcotraficante Mark Cameron Edberg, 2009-07-21 Since the late 1970s a new folk hero has risen to prominence in the U S Mexico border region and beyond the narcotrafficker Celebrated in the narcocorrido a current form of the traditional border song known as the corrido narcotraffickers are often portrayed as larger than life social bandits who rise from poor or marginalized backgrounds to positions of power and wealth by operating outside the law and by living a life of excess challenging authority whether U S or Mexican and flouting all risks including death This image rooted in Mexican history has been transformed and commodified by the music industry and by the drug trafficking industry itself into a potent and highly marketable product that has a broad appeal particularly among those experiencing poverty and power disparities At the same time the transformation from folk hero to marketable product raises serious questions about characterizations of narcocorridos as narratives of resistance This multilayered ethnography takes a wide ranging look at the persona of the narcotrafficker and how it has been shaped by Mexican border culture socioeconomic and power disparities and the transnational music industry Mark Edberg begins by analyzing how the narcocorrido emerged from and relates to the traditional corrido and its folk hero Then drawing upon interviews and participant observation with corrido listening audiences in the border zone as well as musicians and industry producers of narcocorridos he elucidates how the persona of the narcotrafficker has been created commodified and enacted and why this character resonates so strongly with people who are excluded from traditional power structures Finally he takes a look at the concept of the cultural persona itself and its role as both cultural representation and model for practice
