There are a number of arguments used to derive momentum and energy in SR. One method uses conservation laws. If there is no net force acting on a system, the total momentum and energy are conserved. These quantities are not conserved in SR, but the conservation laws are still valid in the rest frame of the system.

There are several other methods of deriving momentum and energy in SR. One method uses the conservation laws.

$$E = mc^2$$

where c is the speed of light in a vacuum.
