Schooling Citizens Hilary J. Moss, 2010-04-15

While white residents of antebellum Boston and New Haven forcefully opposed the education of black residents their counterparts in slaveholding Baltimore did little to resist the establishment of African American schools Such discrepancies Hilary Moss argues suggest that white opposition to black education was not a foregone conclusion Through the comparative lenses of these three cities she shows why opposition erupted where it did across the United States during the same period that gave rise to public education As common schooling emerged in the 1830s providing white children of all classes and ethnicities with the opportunity to become full fledged citizens it redefined citizenship as synonymous with whiteness This link between school and American identity Moss argues increased white hostility to black education at the same time that it spurred African Americans to demand public schooling as a means of securing status as full and equal members of society Shedding new light on the efforts of black Americans to learn independently in the face of white attempts to withhold opportunity Schooling Citizens narrates a previously untold chapter in the thorny history of America s educational inequality

Lewis,Victoria Chou,2001 This book is comprised of fifteen in depth research based essays in which noted educators discuss the history politics challenges and progress of the education of African Americans Historical Perspectives on the Education of Black Children Harry Morgan,1995-06-30 The African American heritage is interwoven throughout the history of the United States but few educators are prepared to teach children about the events that shaped the African American experience Most of the stories about slavery the days when it was illegal to teach black children to read and when blacks were not allowed to vote or own land are part of the remembered oral history of black families Morgan retells American history from the point of view of the events that effected blacks the Great Depression the WPA and the federal policies that led to current Head Start programs school integration in the 1950s and the Civil Rights Movement in the 1960s the War on Poverty and the IQ controversy He shows how Aesop and the teachings of Socrates and Aristotle established the philosophical traditions perpetuated by the great black educators W E B DuBois and Booker T Washington with the purpose of providing black children with a better understanding of their heritage their importance in American history and their place in the world Educational Reconstruction Hilary N. Green,2016-04-01 Tracing the first two decades of state funded African American schools Educational Reconstruction addresses the ways in which black Richmonders black Mobilians and their white allies created developed and sustained a system of African American schools following the Civil War Hilary Green proposes a new chronology in understanding postwar African American education examining how urban African Americans demanded quality public schools from their new city and state partners Revealing the significant gains made after the departure of the Freedmen s Bureau this study reevaluates African American higher education in terms of developing a cadre of public school educator activists and highlights the centrality of urban African American protest in shaping educational decisions and policies in their respective cities and states Learning While Black Janice E. Hale,2001-12-04 In Learning While Black

Janice Hale argues that educators must look beyond the clichés of urban poverty and teacher training to explain the failures of public education with regard to black students. Why Hale asks simply are black students not being educated as well as white students. Hale goes beyond finger pointing to search for solutions. Closing the achievement gap of African American children she writes does not involve better teacher training or more parental involvement. The solution lies in the classroom in the nature of the interaction between the teacher and the child. And the key she argues is the instructional vision and leadership provided by principals. To meet the needs of diverse learners the school must become the heart and soul of a broad effort the coordinator of tutoring and support services provided by churches service clubs fraternal organizations parents and concerned citizens. Calling for the creation of the beloved community envisioned by Dr Martin Luther King Jr Hale outlines strategies for redefining the school as the Family and the broader community as the Village in which each child is too precious to be left behind. In this book I am calling for the school to improve traditional instructional practices and create culturally salient instruction that connects African American children to academic achievement. The instruction should be so delightful that the children love coming to school and find learning to be fun and exciting. Janice Hale
