Trubek, 2013-08-26 No detailed description available for Consumer Law Common Markets and Federalism in Europe and the United States      Making Policy in Europe Svein S Andersen, Kjell A Eliassen, 2001-01-26 This Second Edition of Making Policy in Europe is fully revised and expanded to provide the most up to date introduction to the study of policymaking in the European Union EU The first part of the book introduces the different perspectives to study of the EU as a political system and provides a framework for the study of the main actors and institutions in the decision making process from transnational lobbying within Brussels to the implementation of EU law in national member states Part two introduces each of the main sectoral policy areas The common market is introduced and reviewed before students are provided with detailed studies of policies and policy making in telecommunications the environment energy education immigration and policing In each case the complex interaction between different interests and actors at different levels in the EU apparatus is richly illustrated and the future prospects for further integration fully examined The final part of the book looks at the future economic and political structure of the EU and the direction of contemporary studies of the EU and European integration A completely new chapter reviews European monetary union another looks at the important enlargement question and finally the editors review the wider implications for Europe and the EU political system This book will be essential reading for another generation of students of the EU European public policy and European integration In each case the complex interaction between interests and actors at different levels in the EU apparatus is richly illustrated and the future prospects for further integration are examined      The European Marketplace James Hogan, 1990-11-19      De-Mystification of Participatory Democracy Beate Kohler-Koch, Christine Quittkat, 2013-07-25 The democratic legitimacy of the European Union has become an increasingly urgent issue In searching for a way out academics EU institutions and political forces advocate the involvement of civil society The Commission s new governance approach and the Lisbon Treaty introduced elements of participatory democracy and elevated civil society to a key actor in democratizing the EU Does this hold upon closer scrutiny This is the main question of the book It investigates how the promise of civil society participation is put into practice and based on an elaborate theoretical framework evaluates whether the political practice deserves the quality attribute participatory democracy The book presents the results of a large research project composed of several highly original empirical studies The research team used various methodological approaches and generated a rich data set The wealth of empirical insight is evaluated against clear criteria deduced from normative democratic theory As key elements of the analyses democracy participation and civil society are contested concepts the authors placed particular emphasize on clarifying their understanding of these concepts and on considering competing interpretations By relying on a consistent theoretical approach the authors present an unusually balanced evaluation They come to convincing though rather skeptical conclusions Civil society participation in EU governance is not the democratic remedy its advocates had hoped for This may not be a welcome but nevertheless it is an important finding both for European decision makers for civil society organizations and for scholars      The European Parliament, the National Parliaments, and European Integration Richard S. Katz, Bernhard Wessels, 1999-06-24 European integration is progressing at an even more rapid rate Accompanying this progress is an increasing debate about the institutional shape and legitimacy of this new political order This debate is driven in part by conflicting values and in part by uncertainty This book addresses the question of parliamentary involvement in the emerging European political system by looking at both national and European levels of parliamentary representation In doing this it gives greater attention to the role of national parliaments than is usual in discussions about democracy in the European Union Based on interviews and surveys among members of parliament at the European level and in eleven member states it analyses the role of parliaments and parliamentarians the linkages between national citizenry and the European level and the problems and perspectives of institutional change The book provides analyses of the views from within concerning European integration and concentrates on three dimensions the MPs themselves their embeddedness in the process and their perspectives on institutional structures These views from within offer new insights and answers to institutional problems in the European Union and the so called democratic deficit      History and Power in the Study of Law June Starr, Jane F. Collier, 2018-03-15 No detailed description available for History and Power in the Study of Law      Directory of European Agricultural Organizations, 1984 Overzicht van de diverse agrarische organisaties in de diverse EG landen met vermelding van werkzaamheden en opbouw      Pressure Through Law Carol Harlow, Richard Rawlings, 2013-05-13 Group litigation has been recognised by political scientists in the States as a useful method of gaining ground and attracting publicity for pressure groups since the turn of the century In Britain however recognition that the courts fill such a role has come more slowly Despite this lack of recognition pressure through law is far from a modern phenomenon As the authors show such cases can be identified in Britain as early as 1749 when abolitionists used the court to test conflicting views of slavery in common law This book looks at the extent to which pressure groups in Britain use litigation presenting a view of the courts as a target for campaigners and a vehicle for campaigning It begins with a description of the tradition of pressure through law in Britain tracing the development of a parallel tradition in the United States which has been influential in shaping current British attitudes The authors analyse the significance of the political environment in Britain in test case strategy In contrast with America Britain has no written constitution and no Bill of Rights and its lack of Freedom of Information legislation makes both litigation and the monitoring of its effects very difficult However the centralised character of the British government means that the effects of lobbying are rather more visible in the corridors of power The authors examine a large number of case studies in order to analyse current practice and they look at the rapidly changing European and international scene discussing transnational law the European community and the Council of Europe They also look at the campaign tactics of global organisations such as Amnesty and Greenpeace Carol Harlow and Richard Rawlings are experienced in public law and familiar with political science literature. They are therefore able to relate legal systems to the political process in a book designed to be accessible and important to lawyers, political scientists and to lobby group activists.

Shaping European markets and societies EU regulation has important effects in the member states. This book analyses how business interest organizations respond to this challenge and what strategies they develop to cope with European integration. Starting from the idea that institutional contexts, resource dependencies and organizational characteristics explain to a considerable degree how interest groups adapt to EU policy, making this study delivers important insights into EU governance. The empirical analysis draws on a comprehensive data set of German British French and EU business associations and large firms. Divided into three parts it moves from the study of domestic contexts to the analysis of multilevel governance in the EU, before finally scrutinizing in greater detail the factors that shape the access of interest groups to the EU institutions.
