European Review Of Social Psychology:

European Review of Social Psychology, Volume 12 Wolfgang Stroebe, Miles Hewstone, 2002 This annual series reflects the dynamism of social psychology in Europe and the attention now being paid to European ideas and research. This review will further the international exchange of ideas by providing an outlet for substantial accounts of theoretical and empirical work. The most up to date authoritative view of contemporary social psychology today encompassed in an indispensable reference text. Geographical spread and theoretical diversity of authors to give broad coverage. The series has an experienced editorial board consisting of senior scholars from various European countries and the United States. All chapters are carefully edited to give consistency and accessibility to an international exchange of information. European

Review of Social Psychology: Volume 25 Miles Hewstone, 2017-07-05 The European Review of Social Psychology (ERSP) is an international open submission review journal published under the auspices of the European Association of Social Psychology. It provides an outlet for substantial theory based reviews of empirical work addressing the full range of topics covered by the field of social psychology. Potential authorship is international and papers are edited with the help of a distinguished international editorial board. Articles published in ERSP typically review a programme of the author's own research as evidenced by the author's own papers published in leading peer reviewed journals. The journal welcomes theoretical contributions that are underpinned by a substantial body of empirical research which locate the research programme within a wider body of published research in that area and provide an integration that is greater than the sum of the published articles. ERSP also publishes conventional reviews and meta analyses. All published review articles in this journal have undergone rigorous peer review based on initial screening and refereeing by the Editors and at least two independent expert referees. European Review of Social Psychology: Volume 24 Miles Hewstone, Wolfgang

Stroebe, 2017-09-25 The European Review of Social Psychology (ERSP) is an e first journal published under the auspices of the European Association of Social Psychology. ERSP is an international journal which aims to further the international exchange of ideas by providing an outlet for substantial accounts of theoretical and empirical work whose origins may be but need not be European. The emphasis of these contributions is on substantial individual programmes of research and on critical assessment of major areas of research as well as on topics and initiatives of contemporary interest and originality. All articles published by the European Review whether commissioned by the editors assisted by an international board of established scholars or spontaneously submitted by authors are externally reviewed. Publication is subject to a positive outcome of this review process. ERSP now in its 24th year is widely accepted as one of the major international series in social psychology and accessed by all important abstracting and indexing services including the Social Science Citation Index. With its e first publishing model it offers authors an opportunity to participate in a well respected publication and to disseminate their ideas quickly while allowing readers the chance to see individual articles as soon as they are completed without waiting for a whole

In an attempt to reflect the dynamism of social psychology in Europe, this series publishes work from all nations and many of these papers have never before been published in English. European Review of Social Psychology Wolfgang Stroebe, Miles Hewstone, 2005-02-24. The European Review of Social Psychology is an annual series that reflects the dynamism of social psychology in Europe and has been widely accepted as one of the most important international series in social psychology. The series is open to authors from all nations and its primary purpose is to further the international exchange of ideas by providing an outlet for substantial accounts of theoretical and empirical work. With the help of an editorial board consisting of senior scholars from various European countries, Australasia and North America, the editors invite outstanding researchers to contribute to these volumes. Invitations are based either on suggestions from editorial board members or made in response to proposals submitted to the editors. The emphasis of these contributions is on critical assessment of major areas of research and of substantial individual programmes of research as well as on topics and initiatives of contemporary interest and originality. EUROPEAN REVIEW OF SOCIAL PSYCHOLOGY;, 2018

European Review of Social Psychology: Volume 20 Wolfgang Stroebe, Miles Hewstone, 2010-04-14. Like all volumes of the European Review of Social Psychology, Volume 20 contains articles written by leading researchers spanning the field of social psychology. This volume includes several articles that deal with theoretical and empirical research programs on the impact of implicit goals on behaviour. Thus, Veltkamp, Aarts and Custers present a framework for understanding the implicit motivation of behaviour resulting from deprivation and positive affect. Moskowitz and Ignarri review mechanisms of implicit control of stereotypes as an effective way to prevent the influence of stereotypes on judgment. Next, Payne and Bishara discuss the use of formal dual process models in social psychology with a focus on the Process Dissociation model and related models. These authors use studies of social and affective influences on memory, judgment and decision making to illustrate the utility of these models. Two articles review theories of self-regulation from different perspectives. Fishbach, Zhang and Koo present a research program on the dynamism of self-regulation in a multiple goal context. Alicke and Sedikides review ways in which people pursue self-enhancement and self-protection and discuss the importance of these two constructs in maintaining psychological and physical well-being. In other contributions, Ruys and Stapel present a new theory of the processing of emotional information. Kruglanski, Dechesne, Orehek and Piero review and conceptually integrate the three separate research programs informed by Kruglanski's theory of lay epistemics and Brinol and Petty discuss their theory of self-validation and argue that self-validation processes provide a mechanism for understanding and integrating source effects in attitude changes. Finally, Harris and Fiske show how social neuroscience research can elucidate the phenomenon of dehumanization, contrasting studies on affective and cognitive factors in fully humanized and dehumanized perception and proposing neural systems potentially involved.
